The academic possibilities are many and varied

Braintree High 1983-84, starring a cast of thousands is set beside the placid, clear waters of Sunset Lake in historic Braintree, Massachusetts. BHS is the scene for excursions into the fascinating realms of academics, the arts, careers and physical education. The cast and crew exert a keen effort to achieve excellence. Like a professional cast and crew of a movie masterpiece, it takes a total commitment to make the production run as smoothly as possible.

After a year of hard work and long hours, we have a hit on our hands and everyone can be pleased with the results. Going on location to the various sets we find academic studies ongoing in the B and C wings. Those intent on getting down to business congregate in the A wing where future secretaries and accountants practice their skills. The hands-on set with great diversity is the E-wing where sparks fly, paint gushes, clay spins, saws buzz, engines roar and trumpets blow. The "sweat" set is the gym wing where jocks prowl and others toil.

These 5 major sets along with the cafeteria and media center comprise the broad stage where the 1983-84 production is produced.

John Distefano is proud of his heritage. Jean Laiosa and Mike Jacobson horse around.

AT THE TOP

Even if a major motion picture has Hollywood's best actors and actresses, an exciting plot, breathtaking locations and top crew, it can still become chaotic. In the movies, this chaos is held to manageable levels by the directors. Their jobs are not to teach acting, but to mold the actors' talent and to bring out the full potential of the script. The directors not only work with actors, but with the crew and props as well, so that all are properly combined to produce the best possible result.

At Braintree High School, the directors are our housemasters and headmaster. They work with the student body, the cast, and put us back on track if we stray from our common goal. Making the decisions at the top is Headmaster, Mr. LeRoy. Mr. Grant, Mr. Bregoli and Mr. Hopkins each work with their own segments of the cast and over four years become pretty familiar with the personnel in the three houses. You don't have to understand much about the workings of a school to realize that these people are vital parts of the education business at BHS. Also important though less obvious is Braintree's wizard of bits and bytes, Mr. Tombari, the computer coordinator. Like the corporate directors who make the large scale decisions at the top of the film industry, Braintree has its own team of managers. The School Committee functions like a board of directors making major policy judgments, budget decisions and signing contracts. The Superintendent and the Assistant Superintendents manage the corporation on a daily basis and are responsible for juggling the needs of the students, the staff and the community.

(top inside) Ernest Perrault, Business Manager; Kenneth Dooley, Assistant Superintendent for Curriculum and Instruction; (top outside) Michael Molongoski, Assistant Superintendent for Auxiliary Services; Dr. John Monbouquette, Superintendent of Schools.

The Braintree School Committee: Robert Zanca, Terence Lynn, Betty Papoulidis (student representative), Barbara Zanca (student representative), Francis Curtis, Paul Agnew. (seated) Diane Williams, Joan Compton, Janice Amoroso, Marquita Snow (secretary to the School Committee).

CREATIVE ADVISORS

Tucked away out of reach of all the future historians, scientists and writers are the set designers, costume artists, special effects wizards, composers and performers carrying on in the E-wing.

The creative bunch reaches out into the community with exhibits like the yearly extravaganza at the South Shore Plaza or the marching band's Saturday excursions to Hollis Stadium. At all times of the year the steady buzz of activity is a feature of the area. This year there are some new faces in the E-wing. It's hard to miss Mr. Larson with his Viking yodels in E204 and equally hard to bypass Mr. Shaffer as he drives the instrumental musicians to increasingly better performances.

Sean Daly has fun with an outer space visitor. Piano Man Bill Rooney composes a masterpiece. Art for Renee Burgess is never a strain. Ken Oliver caught on fast to the basic skills in Graphic Design. Mrs. Reynolds shows Meredith Abruzzisi, Leah Dinapoli and Lauren Brundige the fine art of clay modeling Top Row: Mr. Driscoll (Social Studies, Work Study), Mr. Bartholomew (Economics, Sociology, American Government); Miss Cameron (Humanities, American History, Modern European History); Mr. George (American History); Mr. Keelon (Humanities, American Government); Ms. Moran (Humanities, American History, World History). Middle Row: Mrs. Reeves (Secretary); Mr. Murphy (Economics, Psychology); Mr. Nolan (Humanities, Modern European History); Ms. Olson (Director of Social Studies K-12); Mrs. Pierce (Humanities, American History); Mr. Pierce (A.P. European History, Psychology, American History); Bottom Row: Mr. Raiss (World History); Mr. Sutton (Humanities, World History); Mr. Vara (A.P. American History, Law, Anthropology, American Government); Mrs. Waite (Geography, World History); Mr. Weisner (Psychology, Law, Current Affairs); Mr. McDonough (Humanities, American History, American Government).

THE HUMANIST ANGLE

Current events are an important part of any Social Studies course. Mrs. Pierce's board is covered with current events stories from the covers of magazines.

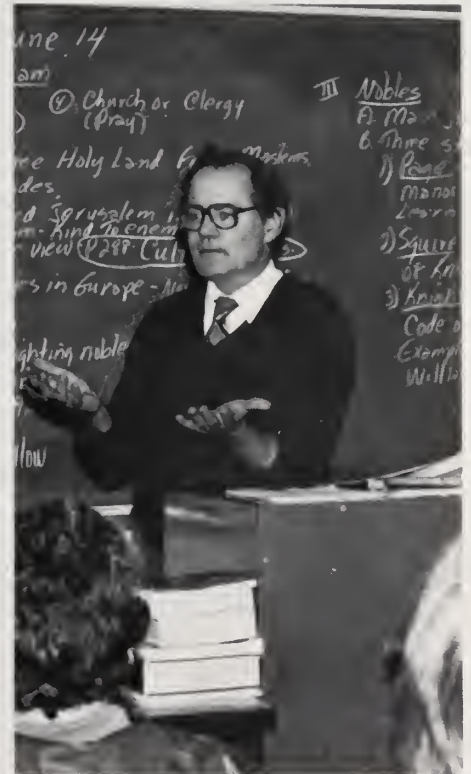

Social Studies is an academic area that has a lot of variety to recommend it. The study of past events shows how we can improve on our culture and prepare for the future. From Ben Hur to Gone With the Wind or The Blue and the Gray the history of man has been replayed in films, and usually in a serious way. Often though, Social Studies can approach the lunacy of a Mel Brooks film.

Everyone was a suspect in the case of Ms. Moran's missing Teddy when the ransom note almost provoked a nervous breakdown.

Jason Caristi had the answer on the tip of his tongue for his Economics class. Mr. Keelon's reviews are always very thorough as the copious blackboard notes show. Social Studies classes do have their lighter moments as Karin Nauth and Valerie Vining evidence with their grins. Social Studies allows you to have the world at your fingertips.

Mr. Drake and the drafting class share a laugh as a project is critiqued. The best benefit of a cooking class is the free food as Paul Vanelli will agree. Mr. Tetzlaff's explanation of the fine points of electrical connections was right on target. Cathy McGinnis must have done a great job of reading a story to her preschool student judging from the expression of the little girl's face.

REPAIRS AND CREATIONS

Somewhere in the E-wing potential Julia Childs and Mario Andrettis lurk polishing their skills and learning the practicalities we all can use to get by in life. You can learn how to design clothes like Pierre Cardin or serve a meal with a gourmet flair like a Hollywood caterer.

From gowns with pizzazz to engines that purr, both industrial arts and home economics allow students room to explore. Hands on experience with cars, washing machines, cabinetry carts, weight benches, kayaks and small buildings come in the variety of courses available in the shops.

"I still am afraid to eat the food I've made in cooking class. I doubt that I'll ever feel differently either," said Donna Galvin.

That isn't true of most people though who take cooking classes to have some extra meals on the house.

Melissa Lawrence has to put a lot of concentration into her sewing project to meet the high standards of the Home Economics Department. (top inside) Mrs. Hut-ton — clothing; (top outside) Ms. Noble — preschool aide; Ms. O'Donnell — parenting, foods; Ms. Schock — preschool; Ms. Welch — foods; Ms. White — Home Economics and Industrial Arts Secretary;

KEEPING THE BOOKS

A wing, the home of the Business Department, thrives on work.

High powered studios need plenty of skilled workers to handle the terrific load of data and paperwork that surrounds the making of any film. Braintree High has its own training ground for future accountants, secretaries, data processors, word processors and stenographers. In the humming business department students are trained in skills that will make them competent to handle the expectations of an office manager.

There is rarely a spare moment to catch your breath in the A-wing between flying hands in typing or the rigors of using a computer. In describing the mentality of the typical typist Mary Parsley said, "F, G, F, space, G, H, G, space." Anyone who has done endless typing drills will recognize sequences like that.

Diane Clifford, a student in word processing, one of the areas in the business department where computers are in frequent use, observed that "Wang is the secretary of the future."

In explaining how business courses can be of help to students, Mr. Dwyer pointed to increased consumer awareness and practical experience which can be put to immediate use. Whether balancing a budget or typing on an IBM, knowledge gained in business courses can be applied.

Carrie Doucette was one of many business students who got practical experience by working in the house offices. Mickey Mouse looked the other way as Deidra Stearns concentrated on her typing copy. Top Row: Ms. Argys (Typing II; Accounting), Mr. Dwyer (Business Principles; General Business), Mrs. Faber (Word Processing; Shorthand/Transcription; Typing I). Middle Row: Ms. Fahey (Office Machines and Business Procedures, Data Processing; Shorthand/Transcription I), Mrs. Lattinville (Typing I; Accounting; Shorthand/Transcription), Ms. Levy (Clerical Practice; Typing). Bottom Row: Mr. MacAllister (DECA), Ms. McNulty (Director of Business Department; Typing I), Ms. Obartuck (Data Processing I and II).

Making sense out of the filing systems in the house offices was a challenge for Suzy Colbert. Ms. Faber and Bob Lang have a laugh during class. Rick Sullivan works hard in accounting.

Mr. Oliveira (Accounting I and II), Mr. Pender (Work Study), Mrs. Powers (Career Center), Mr. Strout (Business Law; Consumer Education), Mr. Driscoll (Work Study).

TECHNICAL DETAILS

BHS students shun "mad" image

In every good monster movie there is a person who is always present. He is the mad scientist. The familiar story of a deranged maniac hiding behind an unassuming, mild-mannered chemist is all too familiar. BHS students don't fit the Jekyll-Hyde mold, however. Physics is not the glamour of moon shots or the China Syndrome, but lots of difficult concepts requiring plenty of study and homework.

Braintree students also get elbow deep in chemistry and biology experiments using specimens for dissection and study or chemicals to test their reactions when combined. It is all pretty ordinary stuff, not at all the Jekyll-Hyde image of Hollywood melodramas.

Cheryl Denton and Mary Riordan are careful to pour the chemicals correctly for their lab experiment. Dissecting strange looking specimens is part of the joy of biology as Ms. Storms is quick to explain to Dave Goldman. Julie Lynch practices her technique with the microscope in preparation for a possible future career in science.

Chris Hannigan uses a pipette to fix a specimen on her slide in an advanced biology course. Handling animals in the lab is another part of a science student's duties as Theresa Cannon demonstrates.

SCRIPTS AND WRITERS

Movies have evolved. We no longer have to play a game of charades to unravel the plot and the actors' dialogue. Before the advent of sound technology there was no need for script writers.

Braintree High's version of script-writers are our English students. It is understood that they are merely in the elementary stages of becoming literary giants. Like their Hollywood counterparts, they must learn to communicate clearly and in various styles. Humor, pathos, clean exposition and analytic prose are some of the writing styles that BHS students experiment with.

Michael Graham does some serious studying before getting to class. Peter Carr and John Hennessey are model students if appearances can be believed. Top row: Ms. Forde; Mr. Gallivan; Ms. Blundo; Ms. Boehmer; Ms. Cahill; Ms. Cobb. Bottom row: Ms. Reeves (secretary for English); Ms. Keenan (Director of English); Ms. Kreinsen; Mr. Corey; Mr. Cosgrove; Ms. Cunningham; Ms. Devaney.

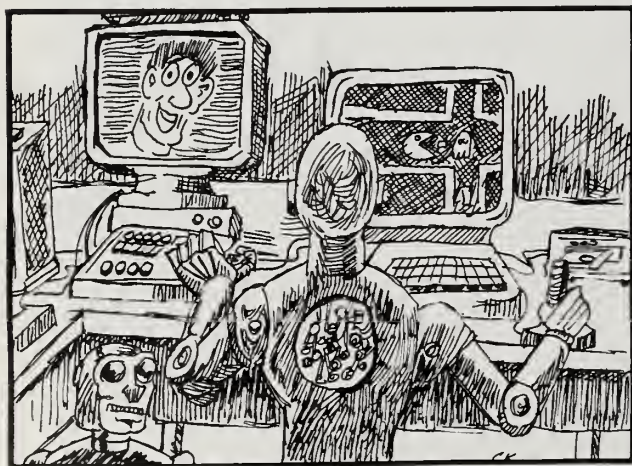

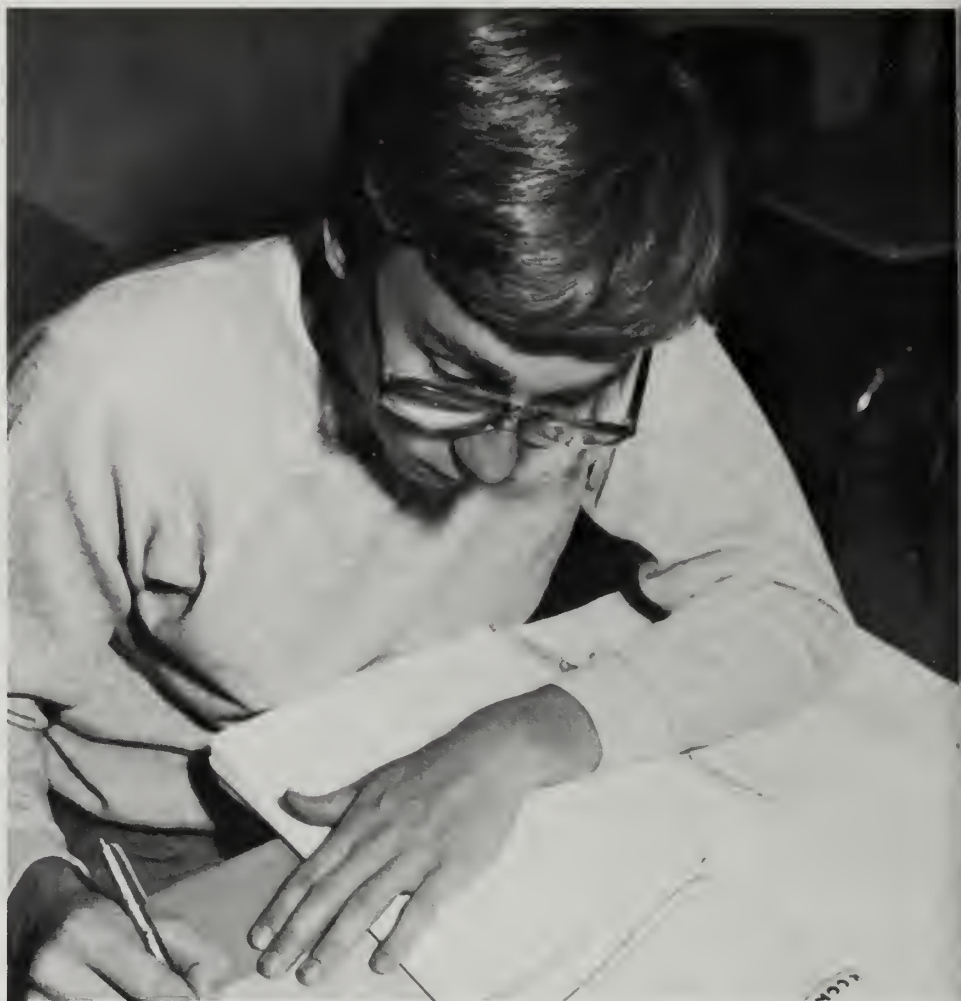

Lauren Barnes and Mary Parsley review an English assignment during Wamp Week. A good grade on an essay might have provoked Janet O'Melia's broad smile. Coming up with a topic for a writing assignment is often difficult. Jim Foley seems to be meditating hard in hopes of getting some inspiration. A dictionary and Roget's Thesaurus are two of a writer's tools. Ms. Cunningham gives Peter Norton a little assistance. Paying attention in class never hurt anyone. John Devin and Barry Hume are apt students. Top row: Mr. McDonough; Ms. McKenzie; Ms. Portnoff; Ms. Publicover. Bottom row: Ms. Spencer; Ms. Celli; Ms. Bracht; Ms. Sutherland.

THE MATH DEPARTMENT

No matter how well the crew of a production works together, there are other factors involved in the production of a film. Statistics, budgets, computer programming are all areas that depend on mathematical skills.

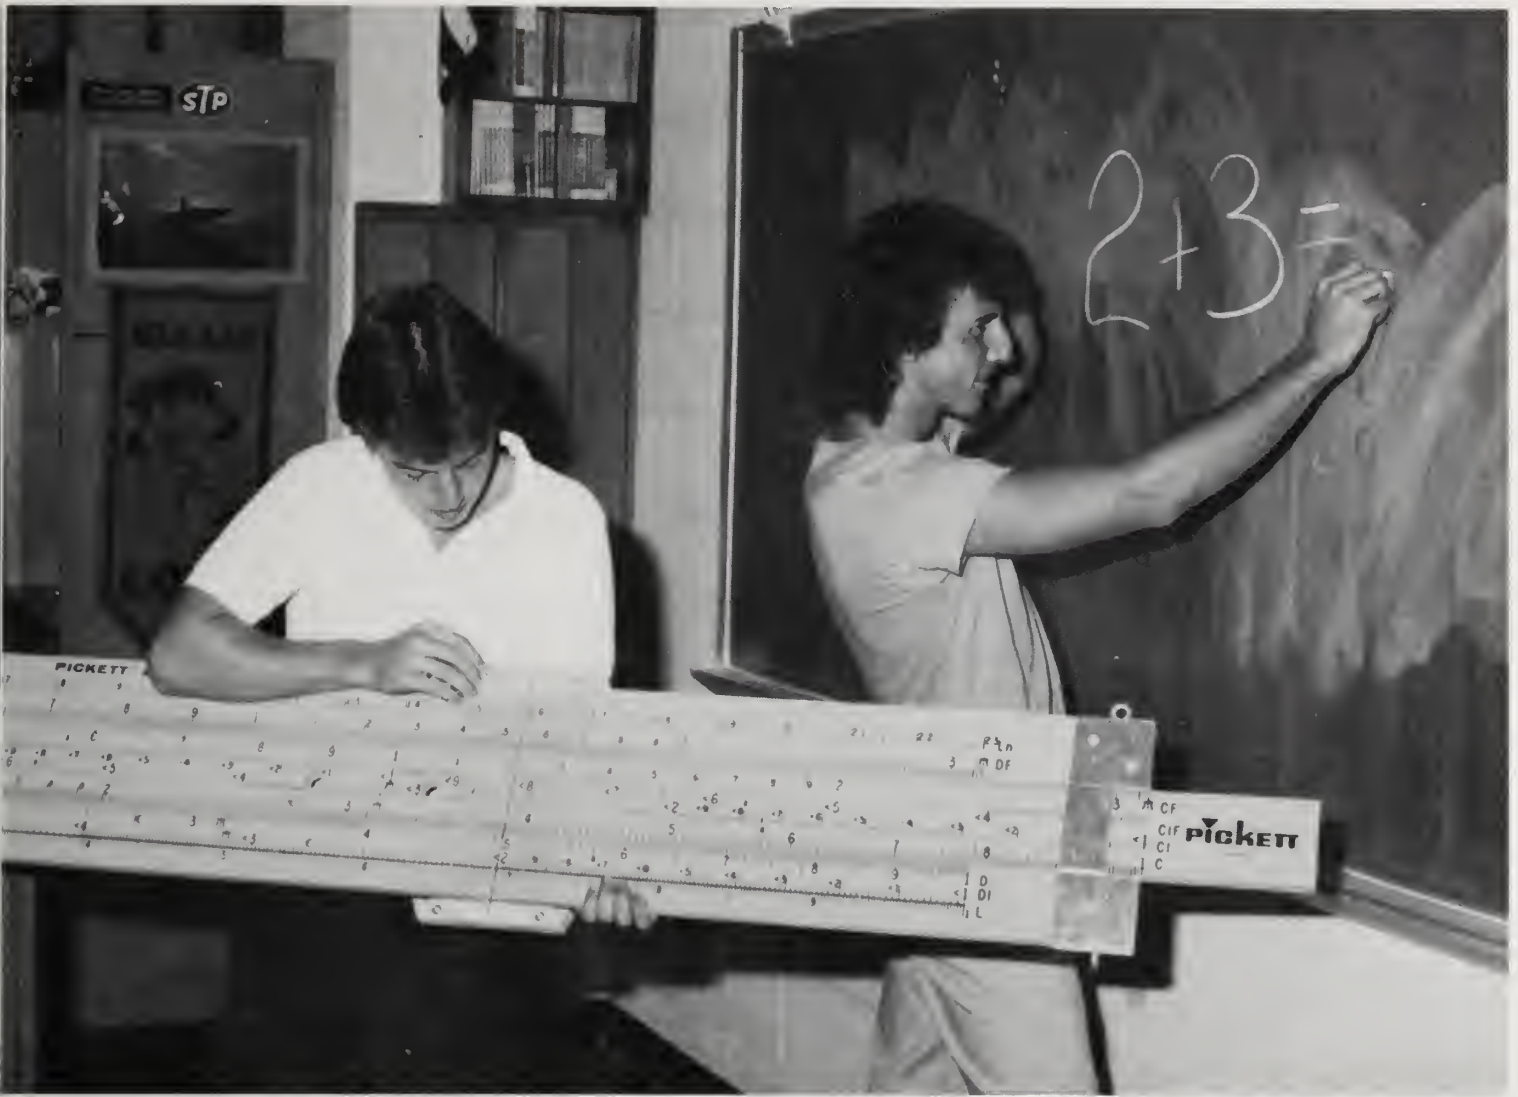

At BHS, the Math department tries to coach students in basic skills. It also provides opportunities for the stars to shine in advanced courses. The ever increasing supply of computers has allowed a larger number of students to have a try at programming. Meanwhile, geometry, trigonometry, algebra and calculus, help to prepare students for business or college.

Possible spinoffs into the world of high technology abound from computer animation and videogames to applications that linger on the edge of fantasy today but will probably be very real in the near future.

Paul Jankowski slaves away at his geometry homework. Mrs. Helm's class was good preparation for advanced study. Mr. Goldman; Mrs. Helm; Mrs. Keelon; Mr. Krot; Mr. Laneau; Mr. Marshall; Ms. McKillop (Director of Mathematics); Mr. Pizzano; Sean Murphy and Bob Compton have some fun using a slide rule to solve a math problem. With the help of a user's manual, Dale Odegard learns to interact with a computer. Ms. Pottle; Ms. Raymond; Ms. Skill; Mr. Weiner; Mr. Smith; Mr. Reynolds; Mr. Kendall; Mr. Storms; Ms. Carroll (secretary for Mathematics); ¿HABLA UD?

DEUTSCH DEUTSCH

Even in Ms. Menovich' classroom you can't learn the language without plenty of drill. Kevin Prior used the quiet atmosphere to his advantage as he did research for a project. One sure sign that the end of the school year is approaching is the sign directing seniors to return their books. Kathy Brennan used her study to advantage in the Media Center. Some members of Ms. Maletz' class looked a bit quizzical as though thinking in Spanish was still a strain.

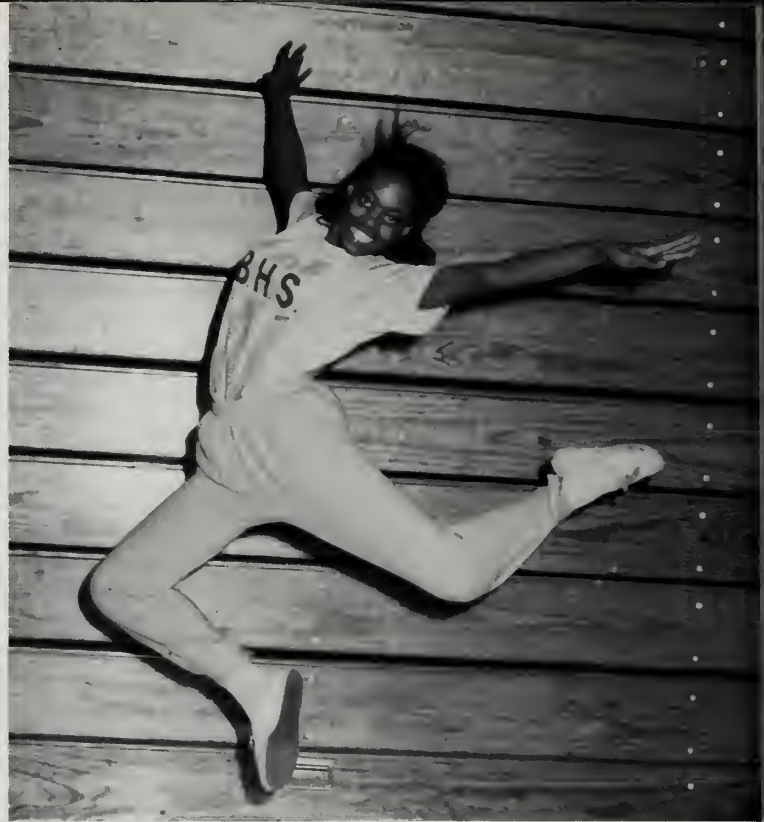

Language is important to most students in high school. It's pretty hard to make sense if you don't communicate verbally. Some push this to the limit by studying foreign languages. They go far beyond reading the subtitles of a tantalizing foreign film and actually understand the language. Many get a chance to act out their fantasies with trips to foreign lands: France, Spain, French Canada or Italy. Their facility with language allows many BHS students to rub elbows with persons from other countries on a fairly equal footing.

Less foreign, but equally exotic is the Media Center. It attracts all types, among them those who were out catching a late, late movie and have to get their homework done before class. Night owls who lack the energy to soar with the better-organized eagles dot the carrels and tables. They are beaten into submission by the watchful eye of Mr. Castonia. Likewise, Ms. Robinson insures that the library remains a place for the studious person to relax and learn.

GETTING PHYSICAL

Hollywood has its share of athletes. Stuntmen use their athletic talents with such daring that the audience wonders if they will make it to the next scene in one piece. Not everyone can perform the acts of these exceptional persons.

Although Braintree High has many exceptional stuntmen and women, it also has many unspoken superstars who can be found daily in gym classes. These unsung heroes participate in a wide variety of skills on an amateur basis. Since these surrogate stuntmen and women don't have the refined moves of true athletes, they are more prone to injury.

For their benefit, as for the rest of the school, we have our own nurses to aid any "fall guys" who might have tripped. Braintree's women of medicine try to keep the student body in working order at least while they're within the school walls.

Kristen Finerty is ministered to by Ms. Barba. The moves of a gymnast can be very athletic as Josie St. Aimee demonstrates. Lots of guys work out in the weight room. Paul Connors is one. Top row: Ms. Barba (nurse); Mr. Carson; Mr. Chute; Ms. Connolly; Mr. Redmond; Bottom row: Ms. Sullivan (nurse); Mr. Richardi; Mr. Schuhwerk; Ms. Smith; Mr. Fredericks. Not everyone can execute a dunk, but Gary Smith can. Joe D'Ottavio pumps iron. Badminton requires good coordination and timing. Jill Johnson has both. Debbie Lane punches a pass in field hockey.

Top row: Ms. Allen (Health & Human Development); Ms. Chmielinski (Special Needs); Ms. English (Project Prove); Ms. Glazerman (Special Needs); Ms. Kelly (Special Needs); Mr. Armstrong (Guidance). Mr. Beck (Guidance); Ms. Buckley (Secretary) for Guidance). Middle Row: Mr. McCarthy (Special Needs); Ms. Nauyokas (Special Needs); Ms. O'Brien (Special Needs); Ms. Plotka (Health and Human Development); Mr. Ronan (Special Needs); Mr. Butler (Guidance); Mr. Forester (Guidance); Mr. King (Guidance); Ms. Farley (Project Prove); Mr. Swanton (Alternative High School); Ms. McIlvain (Alternative High School); Mr. Jordan (Metco); Ms. Kenea (Metco); Ms. Leach (Director of Guidance); Ms. Rothschild (Guidance); Ms. Hefner (Guidance).

THE SUPPORT STAFF

In Hollywood there are certain individuals who help in the production of the film even though their participation is not direct. These people usually don't even make it to the soundstage. They advise actors and actresses, trying to help them become successful by ironing out their emotional, intellectual or social kinks.

At Braintree High, there are staff members who help our cast with academic problems, future plans or perhaps personal problems. Their intent is to help bring the hundreds of students through four years and graduation with as few problems as possible.

Making good choices about your senior program is important. Mr. Armstrong helps Kathy Gately find a an open course by consulting the computer schedule. Mr. King counsels newcomer Elizabeth Martinez. Project Prove students make great strides in their "one room school-house". Ms. Farley helps Joan Stracuzzi concentrate on a writing assignment.

Tim Jensen participates in the restaurant program in the Home Ec department. Veronica Nikolsky and Andrea Cavallini work with Mr. Swanton in the Alternative High School Program. Eddie Ericson, Marie Kneeland and Doug Giles work together on an assignment in the same program.

CHOW'S ON!

The cast has to have somewhere to veg out, relax and chow down. The cafeteria at BHS fits the bill. It is sometimes a "talk" study, student lounge and meeting place. Some come to gossip and others to discuss. It's a place for relaxation, a place to stretch out and be free from desks and books.

Although many gripe criticizing the food selections, lunches and snacks are bought by the hundreds by students who have worked up an appetite during the long blocks before lunch.

Funds are raised, tickets sold, friends greeted on their birthdays. The cafeteria is the heart of the school.

Mr. Westover (custodian); Ms. Beard (matron); Mr. Levangie (electrician); Second row: Mr. Hutchinson (Custodian); Mr. Annis (custodian); Mr. Cameron (custodian); Bottom row: Mr. Canale (custodian); Ms. O'Neill (matron); Mr. Fiore (security guard). CAFETERIA STAFF: Front row: Ann Tarallo, Claire Hickey, Lee Neal, Patricia May (manager), Pat Lear, Claire Whitten. Back row: Nancy White, Margaret Occhino, Betty Varasso, Winifred Corbett, Vera Curley, JoAnn Eldridge, Virginia Zannoni, Ann Belmonte, Julie McDonough, Elin Young, Virginia Mason, Arlene O'Toole, Karen Shepis grabs some food from the cafeteria line. Mark Carnicelli and Beth Powers opt for a lunch of yogurt and milk. Not everyone eats lunch in the cafeteria. Chris Knowles and Dave Aronson catch up on some assignments while everyone around them eats. You can always find some people together during lunch. They eat at the same table everyday. Michael Jacobson, John Morelli, David Howie, Brian Lockwood and Michael Carlino were an unbeatable combination.

THE TRUE MOGHULS

The people who man the offices and keep BHS running are the true moghuls. They, like the legendary bosses of the big Hollywood studios, know more about what is going on than anyone else. Daily they have to cope with disgruntled students, parents, teachers, office machines and computers. It's a rare day when everything goes smoothly. Secretaries are sometimes pushed to their limits. The banter they share in their quieter moments is a mask for the seriousness with which they execute their duties. They keep the actors acting and the directors directing. They are the true moghuls.

Top row: Ms. Christianson (main office secretary and switchboard); Ms. Goggins (secretary for Guidance); Ms. Hickey (secretary for the Headmaster's office).

Middle row: Ms. McMahon (secretary for computer services); Ms. Pollock (Registrar); Mr. Whittaker (coordinator for audio-visual services); Ms. Harris (afternoon secretary for main office and switchboard); Ms. Bottigi (secretary for House 1); Ms. Lungari (secretary for House 2).

Getting a little help in the house office is always nice. Ruth Matranga brightens Ms. Caron's day in House 3. Being a house office secretary can push someone close to the edge of sanity. Ms. Bottigi reminds Fred Columbus to bring in his absence notes, or else.

THE SENIOR CAST

I, Michelle Rice, hereby bequeath Andy's poo to you know who (the nut gang).
I, Frank Richardi, hereby bequeath my entire wardrobe to my cousin Willie.
I, Giustina Rihuede Herrada, hereby bequeath my round glasses and striped socks to Lisa who is dying for them.
I, Cristin Riley, hereby bequeath Mick Jagger's ear lobes to Stacey.
I, Mary Riordan, hereby bequeath my great math skills to Karen Sturzenacker.
I, J.P. Riordon, hereby bequeath locker #B1099 to any little geeky freshman who can figure it out.
I, Janine Ristuccia, hereby bequeath my love and best regards to Marina in Italy.

The Ultimate Hangout

Lockers. Braintree High just wouldn't be the same without them. Not only are they used to hold coats, books, shoes and month-old lunches, but they are a great surface to lean on.

Bill Best, Sean Daly, Rick Gately and Kim Suga are experienced leaners, but everywhere
you go there are many more practicing their art. Lockers can be quite comfortable. The proper position for foot and elbow and you're set ...

At the beginning of the year
small freshmen are sometimes preyed upon by more experienced hanger outers. When they are waylaid, they might find themselves residents of a small ventilated space on a very temporary basis.

It is when those who hang out turn their talents to interior design that problems begin. Decorating lockers with original or not so original art work can result in night work scouring off
the traces.

Breaking Out: Field Trips

One of the most pleasant experiences in the routine of classes and lectures is the chance to go on a field trip. Not only is the monotony of the daily schedule broken, but you can actually learn things and gain experiences on a field trip that could not be had in class.

The Museum of Fine Arts and the Museum of Science are typical destinations, but some of the more unusual trips took classes to a junk yard, a factory where clothing was manufactured and a convention of hotel chefs.

Karen Hart and Cheryl Denton zero in on Duane's wrecking Company in Quincy.

A Juggler's Game School vs. Job

How often does one walk into a senior class and find about seventy five percent of the class either struggling to stay awake or struggling to get the next period's homework done or just struggling to understand what is happening in the class? Chances are that many of the students in any single class are employed and have to work evenings after school. They have to balance two commitments: job and school.

Once a person gets the hang of juggling thirty oranges at once, life is a breeze. When school and work are over, you can think about doing extra things like playing a sport or sleeping or eating or dating.

Although being buried in work is no fun, bringing home a paycheck is important since the money goes for college or more immediate goals.

Recycling: Cash for the SG Fund

Ever since the bottle bill became law the members of the BHS student government have used the opportunity as a fund raising method. Bags of cans from the Coke and Pepsi machines are converted into cash which is spent by the Student Government for local charities like the Toys for Tots campaign. Members of the SG accumulate the cans at an astounding rate. More cash comes in from events like car washes. Another steady source of income is the refreshment stand at BHS home football games. What comes in is banked until needed for SG sponsored events.

Participating in the recycling program and other aspects of SG gives everyone a chance to exercise responsibility and leadership within the high school.

Amy Parker hoists her bag full of empties for recycling.

CAPTURED! By the Matrons

You know the scenario.
You're finished with lunch a little early, and you have nothing to do. You'd really like to get to your locker before the bell rings.
You look carefully out the lunchroom door. No one's there yet ... so you make your move.
Quietly yet quickly you cross the opposite wall. You must decide:
take the direct route through the doors or make a break for the spiral staircase? After a moment of indecision, you take the corner, burst through the doors and bound up them two at a time.
You made it! You casually walk to your locker with a feeling of accomplishment. Then, you hear the dreaded footsteps! A familiar voice says "Where do you belong?" You've been bagged.

Robert Murphy is apprehended
by Ms. O'Neil.

They're Always Out There

What's the holiday? You say it's a feast day for left-handed Mongolian Orthodox camel drivers? That's good enough! Let's sell flowers!

Flower sales make everyone uptight. Long time couples have an obligation to exchange a flower or two, and usually do so before homeroom period, but for the rest a long period of anxiety begins. "Should I buy her a carnation?" is a question often pondered. Many others are asking themselves, "Will I get one from him or her?!" Still others consider, "Maybe I should leave one on the desk with a note attached..." Worried girlfriends keep an eye on how many are left wondering if they will get one as a gift or if they should just buy one themselves before it's too late. The only secure people are the smug ones walking about with their bouquets in hand.

Panic Strikes College bound Seniors

You have no one to blame but yourself. You should have seen it coming from your freshman year. Every year the seniors before you rushed about, getting last minute recommendations and begging for immediate transcript copies. "That won't be me," you thought smugly to yourself. "I'll have all my applications in far before their deadlines." But what is the date on the calendar? It's December and your applications are due January 1st? School will only be in session for another week and you have to fill out five applications, distribute ten recommendations and still get your homework done on time! Your mother warned you that this would happen. Your guidance counselor has been asking about your progress for weeks and you've always said, "I'll start this weekend." But you didn't. "It's not my fault," you declare vehemently. "I was going to..." But you didn't, and now you pay.

"The good times are the best times, and the bad times fade away."

Benefit Softball Game Helps Marianne Grace

On Saturday and Sunday
June 18 and 19, hundreds of BHS students joined in to make the benefit softball game for Marianne Grace a terrific success. For two days and a night the marathon game went on. To feed the spectators food and baked goods were sold at booths on the sidelines. People came from all over the South Shore to play in this worthy cause. The game was even mentioned on local Boston television news broadcasts.

In the evening hours there were tents pitched at Hollis Field to shelter the players and spectators while the game continued uninterrupted under the lights.

The amount of enthusiasm
benefit marathon was a tribute to Marianne Grace. The funds generated helped to pay for her treatments.

Happy Landings: Physics Experiment

You may well ask why supposedly mature seniors get excited over dropping boxes off the circular staircase into the pit. Have they regressed? Are they simply crazy? No, they are acting in the name of science.

The assignment Mr. Cremer gave his physics students was to put an egg in a small box and surround the egg with some material that would prevent it from shattering on impact. Materials such as popcorn, gelatin, cotton and peanut butter were tried, with varying degrees of success. One student packed the box with plastic bags filled with water. On impact, the bags burst and the water went everywhere, but the egg didn't break. One of the most imaginative approaches Mr. Cremer found was suspending the eggs from rubber bands from all sides of the box. Unfortunately, the egg bounced up and down after impact and smashed itself into pieces, but it was a good idea.

Donna Galvin gets ready to drop her packaged egg.

Before the Crush: Dawn Breaks on BHS

This isn't the Braintree High most of us are familiar with. Here as the sun just rises, the halls lie empty and quiet. A single pair of footsteps can be heard approaching from a distance, echoing at a seeming roar as they pass, and then slowly fading away. An occasional voice disturbs the church-like silence of the place. The listener, remembering the talking and laughter of the day before, has difficulty believing it's the same building.

The ceilings seem higher, the walls longer when walking through them alone. As the morning advances, people begin to come in twos and threes, and a low buzz replaces the silence. The trickle becomes a stream of people as the buses arrive, and the silence is lost until they leave again at night.

The In Look: GQ Fashions

The "Gentlemen's Quarterly" Look is beginning to show up at BHS. A lot of boys have started to abandon the old look which was Levis, a t-shirt and sneakers for the snappy and dressy style of GQ. What has replaced the grubby look is pleated dress pants with a pressed button-up shirt to match. A few even wear snazzy, narrow leather ties and soft, pale leather shoes.

The revolution in clothes is causing some marked changes in the atmosphere and attitude in the halls. The change is definitely for the better. Students who dress the part of mature adults tend to act that way. The posing that goes on so that the latest in fashion can be appreciated is now a routine part of the preschool activities between 7:30 and 7:50.

Mark Fitzgerald, Kristen Knoll and Brad Hutchinson illustrate the new and the old "in" looks.

Upward Bound: Cello in Hand

James Jacobson is probably one of the most talented students to graduate from BHS in many years. His life with the cello began when he was in the fourth grade. Now, eight years later, he is an accomplished cellist and studies with Ronald Feldman of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The BHS orchestra is just one of the many groups Jim performs with. He has played with the Massachusetts All-State Orchestra and the All-New England Orchestra. Currently, he is the principal cellist with the Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestra and a member of the professional Mozarteum Chamber Orchestra.

Brockton was the scene of Jim's solo debut last year with the Brockton Symphony Orchestra. Summer found him in Tanglewood studying in the BU Institute's Young Artist's Instrumental program.

High School is only a stepping stone for Jim.

Student Secretaries: Experience Plus

When you take courses in the commercial area, chances are that your typing and secretarial skills will be put to the test when you fill in for the House Office secretaries for a day. There really isn't time for posing with a flower in your teeth like Carrie Doucette. It is all more work and hassle than most think. Kids come in expecting passes to class, there are notes to file and the phone to answer. It is a good approximation of a real secretarial job, plus you have the added advantage of missing your classes for the day — legally.

A New Tradition Begins

Everyone at BHS usually gets into the spirit of the particular season at one time or another, but the sculpture in the library gets dressed up for every occasion. Sculpted by Laurel Bernier in 1977, the sculpture this year was adopted by some enterprising seniors who made sure that the fashion show was seasonal and current. During Wamp Week, the statue "Penelope" started the fashion show dressed in her best blue and white t-shirt with an Indian Wamp 'em hat. Halloween found the entertaining miss in her Frankenstein look-alike togs. For Thanksgiving, Penelope went all out and dressed as a Pilgrim.

As the seasons passed it was clear that the Penelope tradition was here to stay. She was transformed from holiday elf to baby New Year, to Cupid. She never missed an occasion, topping off her participation in this new and creative BHS tradition by wearing a cap and gown for graduation.

Getting There: the Alternatives

Getting to school can present some choices. Some walk protesting every step and wishing that they lived just outside the busing limit. Others look on the hike to school as exercise (in good weather). Those lucky few who can afford cars drive and give their friends rides. Others have come up with some more inventive methods of transporting themselves to school. David Kearney rides his shiny Honda to BHS and chains it to the lamp post. Others pedal or motor in on bikes and mopeds.

Sampling the Services

ARMY, NAVY, AIR FORCE, MARINES ... they don't ask for experience, they give it. Every year the major services come to BHS to show interested students the many opportunities available to them through the U.S. armed forces. Special training, funds for college study and travel are some of the inducements which recruiters mention when talking to prospective enlistees.

Recruiters inform students about career paths in the services, housing, basic training and overseas assignments. This year the Army presented a slide show during the lunch hour while recruiters talked with prospects. The Navy staff came by several times to speak with students. The Air Force rolled up with a semi which parked outside the E-wing and allowed students a more comprehensive look at the military life.

The services are different, but the message is the same — it's a great place to start.

A Relic Now: Hollis Stadium

Hollis Stadium stands alone now. Gone are the cheering crowds from football games, the proud families of thousands of BHS graduates.

Those in the lower grades will never sit in the blue bleachers, will never know the school pride which inhabited the place.

In our freshman year, the school united to paint the stadium. But now it is empty, and an empty condemned stadium is simply a mass of cement and wood. It was the people who brought the atmosphere of competition, the collective joy in victory or sadness in defeat. The quiet which now reigns is alien to the former roar of the spectators, cheerleaders and band.

The grass will grow unheeded. The benches will rot and the paint will peel until the town decides it needs the space and completes the destruction and tears the place down.

Beating the Odds: Bits and Bytes

Stay Calm . . . nothing could possibly go wrong now. You wrote the program with extreme care, and checked it over several times. The teacher collected it and returned it with a "Should Work" comment on top. You've been typing it in for three days, and are just putting on the finishing touches now. Finally, you end it and hesitantly push the R button for "run". You say a silent prayer, and every thing seems to be going fine until you hear the telltale "Beep" and realize that you have made an error. You put the computer in the editor mode and examine the program. However, you now realize to your horror that what is on the screen is a garbled mess of letters and symbols and not at all what you typed in. In despair you run out of the computer room screaming, "Mr. Kendall, it ate my program again!!!"

Joining the Bloodline

"The only rule of the game is — don't draw blood." This is one of the few rules associated with the wild game of team handball which is played in the BHS wrestling room. This rule was not in effect on October 4, 1983 when the semi-annual visit by the Red Cross Bloodmobile.

It wasn't odd on that day to see both students and teachers in the D wing trying to find their confidence to face the needle. Once that agony was over though, everything was turned around by faces filled with smiles of accomplishment, relief or gratitude that they didn't faint.

Unfortunately, a few of our well- intentioned Wamps had some adverse side effects. Dawn Cedrone stole the show when she became decidedly pale-faced after making her donation. Sean Murphy and Corrine Fillion both turned a bit green and admitted to "not feeling so hot".

Hot Fashions: The Punk Look

The Punk Look — it's the only way to go to create the new you in 1983-4. The Punk Look is definitely in: it's stylish, awesome and a way to tell people you are different. The look is buttons and zippers, reds and yellows, blue nylons and black knickers, and a hairstyle that speaks for itself. Along with the clothes goes a personality that emphasizes the joys of being alive. Warmth and friendliness are also brought out because you feel good about yourself and the way you dress. The Punk Look has its believers at Braintree High. Some are more daring than others in their adaptations, but the look is one of the important trends of the year in clothing.

Julie Eden has the look.

Skateboarding: The Fad Endures

Skateboarding. Skateboard?
Like what I used to do when I was a kid? Or that California fad? Or 360's?

No, it's doing mega airs, inverts, grinds, and ollies. Confused yet? Well, skateboarding has to be seen to be believed.
Riding on vertical ramps and sometimes empty pools is just too mind boggling for John Q.
Average.

Maybe you can drain your backyard pool and let a few skateboard dogs rip it apart for you to view from your patio. They'll glide up and skim down hanging on the edge of danger as they reverse direction without effort.
They'll swivel and twist avoiding disaster as you watch horrified from the sidelines.

Skateboarding is an underground sport of danger not for the typical conservative citizen.
Maybe that's why Shawn McLean is such a master of the sport. He is definitely one of those daring individuals who likes to live on the edge.

Class Rings: Signs of Status

During junior year, buying a class ring was a must among certain portions of the class. In the heat of the moment it didn't seem unusual or important that everyone would be spending one to two hundred dollars for a ring that would be replaced in a few years by a college ring or another ring.

As Balfour shipped in the 1984 class rings everyone rushed to pay their outstanding balances so that they could put their rings on their fingers. Many people carried on the tradition by "spinning the ring", having the new ring turned by different people eighty-four times.

After a day of spinning, the new rings went home on swollen fingers to be admired by family members.

The excitement of the first few days gradually wore off and was replaced by quiet pride in senior status as indicated by the rings.

Jody Caswell selects her ring.

Interior Decorating: Paintings Everywhere

Not all the food in the cafeteria can be found on the lunch lines and tables. Some of it is on the walls. No, I'm not referring to the splattered remnants of an intense food fight, but to the collection of paintings which various BHS artists over the years have contributed. Sprucing up the dull cream and yellow walls are depictions of hamburgers (we wished ours looked as good), bags of potato chips, candy bars, ice cream and apples.

The "Mike and Ike's" which can be found in the candy machine can also be seen outside the doors of the lunchlines. Although you may have never stopped to look closely at them, these paintings add a touch of personality to the otherwise uniform and boring room.

Debbie Borden and Cheryl McAdams work on a mural in C216.

For Sale: School Spirit

The School Store is where you buy school spirit. You can buy BHS jackets or gym shorts, decals and t-shirts. The bookstore is run and managed by students in the DECA program. The interest in the stock of the store periodically surges as new items come in. It serves the function of providing training ground for work study students in retail sales as well as providing students in the general population with a place to purchase items with Braintree High logos.

New Quarters: The Smoking Area

This is all the space smokers have left at Braintree High. No longer do they occupy the front of the building, roaming where they will between the cafeteria and the gym lobby doors. The new boundaries have no protection from rain or snow and very little room even for walking. The view of the loading dock isn't terribly scenic either. Freshman and sophomore students are prohibited from smoking even in this area. More restrictive still is the time now permitted for smoking: only during the lunch hour.

Teachers and non-smokers don't mind the new policy as it doesn't effect them. Most agree it improves the initial impression of those visiting the high school. As for the rest, many area schools have banned smoking altogether. Having some kind of smoking area is better than taking a chance on getting caught while sneaking a smoke in a bathroom.

Planning the Senior Prom: a Huge Responsibility

The planning of a high school prom takes not only a lot of time, but also a great deal of endurance to keep up with all the details. This event is one of the highlights of one's high school remembrances for it is perhaps the only time that young men move on from school clothes into tuxedos, and young women press their prom corsage in a heavy book and fill their diaries with several pages detailing their experience.

Dozens of lists for bands, halls, photographers, menus, invitations, favors and other details must be made so that disorganization won't cause a major disappointment for the many anxious seniors. The School Committee must approve the arrangements in advance. Costs are a prime consideration. If the class hasn't been successful in raising funds, the student promgoers must bear more of the costs directly. If you wondered why the class has been trying to raise funds since you were a freshman, you have your answer.

Like parents with kids, if you've been planning the prom for months, you never stop worrying once the process starts. Anything could go wrong at any time, but you just try not to think about that and clench your teeth to get through all the work.

Usually it all pays off on Prom Night. Seeing everyone having a great time gives the planners a great feeling of accomplishment.

Watching the holovideo in my autocar the other day, I saw commercials for new Lincolns and Grand Prix at $350. It was shocking to think back to 1984 and our high school years. Deflation caused by the last war has made prices from that year seem outrageously high.

The noon news featured a story about President JAY JERNEGAN flying in Air Force 1 to New Leroytown, formerly Moscow in old Russia. He would give CORRINE FILLION her inaugural oath as governor of the new territory where capitalist principles were to be installed.

I thought back again to 1984, the year of my high school graduation. The predictions of George Orwell had not completely come to pass, but the future was promising change. I thought of the graduates of the class of 1984 of Braintree High school and their present ventures and occupations and this is what I came across:

On Tuesday I had to go to pay my energy bill at Braintree's new Professions Complex where the old plaza used to be. On my way I saw officer MIKE SVIZZERO giving a warning to JEAN LAIOSA who was lobbying to destroy morality. When I reached the complex both JOHN MATHESON and STEVEN MURRAY were complaining hard but paying their outrageous tax bills. As I walked down the hallway, I noticed names of familiar businesses on the doors such as "Computers for You," BILL DISHER, President; "Carpentry, Inc.," RAY ELDRIDGE, proprietor; "Word Processing Unlimited," JANINE MURPHY owner; "Creamer and Doe Investors," KEVIN CREAMER, general partner; "JCB Computer Applications," JIM LOCHIATTO, programmer.

Also in this maze of small businesses was the accounting firm of M. BUTTERFIELD and R. MURPHY with JILL JOHNSON in the outer office typing tax information. Next I poked my head into the office of Upton Communications to say hello to LISA MENADUE, the honcho of the operation. I finally made it to the Braintree Energy Office to pay my bill. To my surprise I saw MIKE CHEVERIE. He was on a junket from the U.S. Treasury Department and asked me to do him a favor by delivering some tax forms to DONNA JANSKY'S clinic for underprivileged kids. I agreed, but first I had more errands to run.

On the top of my list of things to do was to bring my car into MIKE LENTO's garage for a tune-up. I left my transport there and went off to get my hair done. Stopping in at Ponch's Clippers, I saw MICHAEL REEVES getting his hair styled by JOHN (PONCH) MORELLI. Also working at Clippers were cosmetologists TINA WOOD, CHARLAINE JOHNSON and beauticians PATTI HURLEY and CHERYL FLOYD.

With some time to kill before my computer tune-up was complete, I strolled through Braintree Square and caught a snack at McDonald's, greeting owner PATTI VIVONA. KIM FIORENTINO was still waiting tables at Nick's Seafood and PAUL VANNELLI was checking ID's at his package store. LORA FIELD was home on leave in her army green with combat ribbons from the war. DAVE FLETCHER waxed his vintage Corvette in his driveway as I walked by.

After picking up my wheels, I rushed over to the clinic to drop off the literature. There I saw nurse LYNNE MAGLIO and the clinic's physical therapist, PATTI McELANEY as well as DR. ROB McMAHON, the head of guidance and therapy.

On my way home, I had to pick up my son from school. He told me how he sang Old MacDonald with MS. FAGAN and MS. GORMAN. We stopped at the new Jordan Marsh at the site of the old high school and were waited on by KIM MITCHNER. Kim reminded me of the many happy ex-BHS students that still lived in Braintree. SANDRA DeSANTIS, ROB WARNER and KARA McDONOUGH only wanted to be happy and successful and got their wish. Living simple but enjoyable lives was the ultimate for MIKE DUGGAN, running his own happy house, ANGELA PUCILLO, working happily with children and DEBBIE READE who was just going along as usual. Some lucky souls decided that being content with life as it is was the key to happiness. SEAN BAGGETT and AMY MILWARD were years ahead of most of us in that respect.

Dinner was punched in to the computer kitchen command center and I had time to amuse myself before mealtime.

I turned in the rock video station to find MAUREEN BRID's hit "The Boxer" getting a play. A flash on the screen reminded the audience that today was STEVE KIRBY DAY at Fenway Park. Steve was surely a standout, but I was reminded of the other BHS sports heroes who had made a name for themselves in New England. JOE CANAVAN was the leading scorer for the Team and GREG KEATING had made it to the top in pro golf with a win in the Pan Am tourney this year.

Thinking about BHS always sets me to dreaming. I was brought up short when my son rushed up to me with a Webman comic and asked me to read it to him. CHRIS KNOWLES, the artist, sure had come a long way with his art since high school. SEAN DALY'S new flick was in general release. "Return of the Force" starring YVONNE DHIMITRI and MAUREEN McDONOUGH was on the family list of must-see movies. Later in the week we were scheduled to catch the Boston Ballet version of "Swan Lake" starring JOANNE BARONE dancing the lead.

This was going to be a busy week. CHRISTINE ZINZOPOULOS and CHRIS ROBBINS were in town for concerts at the Wang Center and the Channel with their bands. It was going to be tough to fit in the Johnny Carson Show with ANNE WRIGHT as guest host. Oh well, there was always the video recorder.

Smoke was coming from the kitchen. Computers aren't foolproof. Oh, well, I could call JACKIE QUINN's gourmet restaurant and see if they would pack up a meal for carryout.

The smell from the oven made me sad and reminded me of those who wouldn't be at the 25 years reunion. PETER CALLAGHAN, ROBERT CAVANAUGH and MARY RIORDAN had provided CURTIS BROIDE and his hearse with some tragic business.

Gone but only temporarily are DIANE GLYNN who is in residence for the U.S. Air Force at the moonbase, and JOHN CLARK who is recreating history and flying around the world (of all things) in a prop plane.

LAURA JUNIOR and STEVE JONES were destined to enjoy the California sunsets in Hollywood. The world is such a small place with BHS grads flung throughout the galaxy.

I keyed the computer and did order a replacement dinner from Quinn's. As I transferred the funds by computer I was reminded how lucky some of my classmates were when it came to money. JILL VITAGLIANO had it made when she hit Megabucks for a cool three million before the deflation. JODY MURPHY, CHRIS GREENE, JEFF HEALY, ANNE McDONOUGH, JOHN SHERMAN and JASON CARISTI and STEVEN FITZGERALD made their money with hard work and shrewd investments. Some just seemed to attract riches. PAUL QUATTROCHI, RICK GATELY, SCOTT MARTIN, ROB RAVINO, LESLIE REEVES, JOHN CURTIN and CHRIS DEADY sort of just snapped their fingers and hit the big time.

The source of their wealth is a guarded secret, but it has to be substantial to support MIKE JACOBSON and ARTY GILLIS in their 50 room mansions. Twenty room estates were the best that SCOTT ST. JOHN, KAREN SCHEPIS, TRICIA MARKAKOS and KIM MERCURIO could manage with their modest fortunes. Summering in the NE and wintering in the Caribbean allow MIKE SCHEPICI and KRISTEN FINERTY to lounge on their family yachts sipping cool ones all year long.

Families are so important. Just last week I passed BRIAN "DOOBIE" LOCKWOOD taking Doobie Jr. to see the revival of the Ramones at the New Boston Garden. RAY CAMPISI was there too telling his son how he had to walk five miles through ten feet of snow to get to school in 1984.

Not everyone has been as lucky with their marriages, but both SUSAN GUINEY and KAREN STURZENACKER pull in a tidy sum in alimony after their divorces. And DIANE DORGAN is spending large amounts, though not her own.

VALERIE VINING is becoming a national celebrity after her appearance on "Nova" in their bioengineering segment. It was a pleasant shock to find STACEY MILLER on the cover of "Businesswoman" magazine in her gray alpaca suit with a lizard brief case. BHS put some big names into the greater Boston community, including JEAN SULLIVAN with the biggest solar power company in the country and Bob Compton whose camp for the handicapped involves both therapy and computer training.

Lots of BHS alumni had steered their route toward the business world. Everyday when I scanned the Globe, I went straight for TIM HUNT's column. LISA SULLIVAN's column was on the cable news service. Electrical engineer, JOANNE CREAMER worked for the cable system until a better offer lured her to China, where she got reacquainted with engineers RICHARD GALLAGHER and Dan McCUE.

Architect JEFF CARLINO designed the new Mayo Clinic extension in Back Bay where DAVID MURPHY works as a medical technologist. DAVID GOLDMAN and CHRIS HANNIGAN, both on the staff at the clinic, recommended Jeff for the contract. PAUL SCHMITT was leaving the clinic setting to set up his own medical practice. They all did so well to make it to the top of the medical community in Boston.

JAMES MILLER and DIANE FRUTH have exchanged 9-5 jobs in the world of merchandising with fashion buyers LONNIE BARNES and PAM WARD working hard to keep the firm competitive. Lawyer MARSHA WILLIAMS is a frequent client as is jazz saxophonist LARRY DUGGAN in town briefly from a stint in NYC.

Two other well known customers at the trend setting fashion shop are JULIE BERRIGAN, recently awarded the Nobel prize in Medicine for her discovery in treating shortness, and CAROL FEENEY her research assistant. JEAN CLEVELAND is collaborating on a book about the two famous researchers and hopes to popularize their discovery.

Not everyone stayed in Braintree or the Boston area. SHAWN MCLEAN and CLIFF SWAIN cruise in Hawaii, SHAWN on his skateboard and CLIFF in his Porsche. DIANE SWEENEY booked a stay at DIANE CLIFFORD'S resort where PHIL BABCOCK and DAVE CHAMILLARD were scuba diving on a day off from Phil's thriving appliance business. ELAINA CUSHING spent her days surfing on Waikiki.

Hawaii was too far away for most BHSers, but Florida was the top stateside choice for those who love the sun and hate the snow. JIM COTONE spent his fortune for a condominium and whiled away his mornings watching PETER CARR driving golf balls on the course, and ED CAVANAUGH with his mechanized tobacco farm in the distance. DONNA LALLY was bombing around on her motorcycle through the beach communities with undercover CIA hit man BRYAN JONES.

BRYAN was transferred to the east coast after a successful career in California where he was defended in a court case by lawyer BARBARA ZANCA. Barbara was also legal counsel to BHS transplants JILL HUTTON, KEN CAMPBELL and BETH REARDON. OFFICER JOHN MORELLI was having a hard time keeping up with the wheels of SUZANNE FISHER in her Ferrari, ROB LOWE in his restored Corvette, HELEN BARAGGIA in her Maserati and architect Brian Betzger's BMW. KAREN FEHAN had done such a great job of styling John's hair that it was barely mussed as he pulled them over for speeding.

BHS people ended up all over the world judging from the greeting cards I receive during the holidays. LAURA SMITH always writes from Canada. GREGG FALLON sends greetings from northern Montana. The postmark on BEV CRANE's postcards says Greece. France enthralled and kept ex-patriots CHERYL DENTON and KAREN HART. Their cards come from a little ville on the Seine. MARK FITZGERALD, MICHELLE RICE, TOM HUDSON and DEBBIE DENICOLA each sent postcards from their haunts in the Caribbean. JIM FOLEY'S casino in the Bahamas was the scene on one of the cards. JOANNE DONOVAN'S letter arrived with a postmark from an oil sheikdom. She must have settled there after serving out her tour in the Peace Corps. HILARY SULLIVAN and SUSAN DWELLEY checked in from NYC. and LAUREN BARNES sent her best from the French Riviera.

Interesting lives, big bank accounts and fascinating professions have spelled success for the class of 1984. It boggles the mind to think of the outcomes for some of BHS' best. STEVE DUGGAN the psychologist, JEREMIAH RIORDON the lieutenant commander of a cruise ship, MARIA ADUKONIS the artist, CARRIE DOUCETTE the beachcomber, ROB FLATER the EMT, MISSY GIBBS the nurse, DONNA GALVIN the physical therapist, DAVE KEARNEY the business tycoon, FRANK RICHARDI the electrical technician, MARTINA DUFFY the sales manager and TRACI MARINO the executive secretary.

Some had their professions. Others had their families to occupy all of their time after graduation. LISA MILLER, JEAN KRUMSCHEID, LAURA JORDAN, LARRY GETTINGS, MARY TOSONE, CAROL THODE, JILL CAPODANNO and MARIANNE GRACE were very big on their commitments to family.

Like most people in the culture many BHSers had to work and raise their kids at the same time.

CATHY MCGINNIS juggled skating with motherhood. SUZANNE FIELD kept on working as a secretary as her kids grew up. LISA HALLISSEY, TERRY CANNON, CHERI VINTON AND SHARON MONNEYPENNY all did their best to balance off their career and family responsibilities.

Not everybody was so serious though. Parties at BILL SIMOLARIDIS' have become a legend. Out for FUN were JOANNE GREENE, JODY COLBERT and MERI BODNER, REGINA PRITCHARD, DAWN CEDRONE, KATIE CORCORAN, DONNA DOHERTY, KERRI SWAIN and TERRI WOLFF, ROB MISCHLER, ROB SON and DAVIE ARONSON.

JOHN HENNESSEY still parties with JAKE and ROB. JOE SANFILIPPO is still trying to decide what to do with his life while KAREN BARONE eats Froot Loops. Lisa Sheridan is still trying to get 100 credits while DIANE LAFOREST and MONIQUE RUMSEY wait for her and play hangman in chemistry. LENNETTE GIGLIO passes her days tuned in to Led Zep and the Stones. BRIAN MURRAY chuckles, thinking of Walter Volpe's hair. MIKE GEAR just smiles and reminisces.

LARRY LARSON is waiting for KENNY to graduate. DAVID LAVOIE and CHRIS GREENE are hawking flowers at Logan spaceport while JIM MCKENNA is freezing in a cold parking lot trying to jump start LARRY'S car.

Tying up the loose ends is hard. There is MIKE WESTENHOEFER at Jordan Marsh, LISA FORGERON, legal secretary to the Supreme Court, MICHELLE MACKINNON, the computer programmer, TINA CADDICK SULLIVAN the paralegal, KRISTEN MOWLES the super mother with her twelve kids, SUZY COLBERT the secretary at Polaroid, KIM CESARIO, JAYNE ANASTASIO, DONNA CONVERSE and LYNNANN SCAMMEL with their daycare franchise, MARIA DANGORA, ROSE GRIECO, FRAN ARNOLD and DAWN COLBURN climbing mountains in Walla, Walla, Washington, married folks: LISA CARUSO, JULIE LYNCH, ELIZABETH MATTSON, LEANNE FOLEY, ROB LESENECHAL and JOANN KILEY.

KIM SUGA has been patiently waiting for the Celtics or Bruins to win another championship in the New Boston Garden on the reclaimed land of Sunset Lake. Maybe in twenty more years he will get his wish.

I got mine. My life is pretty much as I hoped it would be when I thought about it in 1984. I hope the rest of the members of the class of '84 are as happy.

HOLLYWOOD LIGHTS

Like the troupers who work to put on a performance in Fame, the members of Student Government are more interested in gaining experience than in notoriety. Their efforts often go unnoticed because they occur behind the scenes. Some projects, however, do receive a lot of attention. Toys for Tots involved many more while insuring a good holiday for the disadvantaged or forgotten children of the South Shore. From the Bloodmobile to the refreshment stand operation, the members of Student Government worked to better the school.

PRIME TIME STARS

You must have maintained standards of service, scholarship and leadership to be admitted to the National Honor Society. This year NHS members took part in organizing Parents Night. They acted as escorts and provided information and directions to parents who might have been overwhelmed by the size of the school. In addition, NHS members have served as tutors in a wide variety of academic courses, using their intellect for the benefit of others.

Students Against Drunk Driving is a relatively new addition to the range of BHS organizations. Under the direction of Ms. Allen, the students involved in SADD discuss the problem and consequences of drunk driving during freshmen and sophomore classes. They discuss actual incidents of deaths caused by alcohol abuse, and try to make their peers understand the risks involved.

L'année passé, nous sommes allés au Canada pour quatre jours en février. Le voyage à Montreal et à Quebec a été le meilleur expérience. Tous a eu un très bon temps.

Nous avons vu l'église de Notre Dame. On ne pensait pas qu'une église serait si jolie. Nous avons mangé à Vieux Munich, un restaurant allemand. On a dansé là pour quelques heures.

Nous avons fait du ski à Mount Chanteeler. Après cela, nous avons mangé à Le fou du Roi. Nous avons employé les mains pour manger la nourriture.

Carnival, une tradition canadienne, a été une expérience qu'on ne peut pas oublier. Les Québécois ont été gentils. Nous avons fait la connaissance des gens de Old Orchard Beach. Ils ont été très bizarre. Il y a été une parade avec le bonhomme. Bonhomme est un homme de neige. S'il boit quelqu'un qui n'a pas un sourire il se donne des alcools. On a eu des cannes qui étaient vides dedans.

The harmonies are impressive. In snazzy tuxedos and white and black, the look is dazzling. Singers in the Chorale, the largest of the vocal groups at BHS, are frequent performers in the greater Boston community. Besides the usual appearances this year at South and East Junior Highs, the vocal group performed at by invitation at Lord and Taylor and at the prestigious Hyatt Regency Hotel in Cambridge.

Part of the proud tradition of the group includes their victory at the international Big Apple Music Festival where they won a championship in 1982.

DA CAMERA SINGERS

There can be no doubt. When you first see the Da Camera Singers, you immediately know you are seeing a very special group of musicians. The Da Camera Singers are known for their crisp renditions of songs from the Renaissance, Baroque and early Classical periods. To emphasize the special nature of their music the group performs in costume. Dressed in flowing gowns which are replicas of garments worn during the Renaissance, the singers accompany themselves on early instruments such as the lute, recorder, timbrel and hand drum.

Like other BHS musical groups, the Da Camera Singers are in demand for community appearances in addition to their usual calendar of concerts at the high school.

The difficult nature of their music requires special skills of the girls. Many have been selected to perform in Southeast District Concerts, All-State and All-New England concerts based on their competitive scores.

Being part of the small army of AV aides puts you on the front line of the battle against frayed films, burned out bulbs, xerox machines and balky duplicators. You're there in the morning when the fleet of projectors has to be delivered to anxiously waiting classroom teachers.

Everyone depends on you for the smooth flow of films, videotapes and equipment and you must deliver or an important part of the education process at BHS grinds to a halt.

Computers are the wave of the future. Many students at BHS are becoming computer literate by taking courses in computer programming. Others are going a step further by exploring computer applications through the Computer Users Group, a new organization this year. Besides learning how to operate a computer more effectively, group members can help each other to expand their knowledge of procedures and give them a taste of the possibilities in a computer-related career. Group members have the freedom to explore possibilities in an atmosphere free from course deadlines and grades.

Future artists of the world have risen and landed in E202. Being a part of senior art seminar is being a part of the talent that will be leaving the halls and easels of BHS and moving on the possible careers of creativity. This small group of the BHS population has either made a decision to pursue a career in art or is considering the possibility.

Just because you land in E202 doesn't guarantee that you will be heading to Pratt or Parsons in September. The work is based on individual needs of the students and on their interests. By the end of the assignments there are enough projects to construct a portfolio. Like most things worthwhile, you get out what you put in.

ON SLOPES AND MOUNTAINS

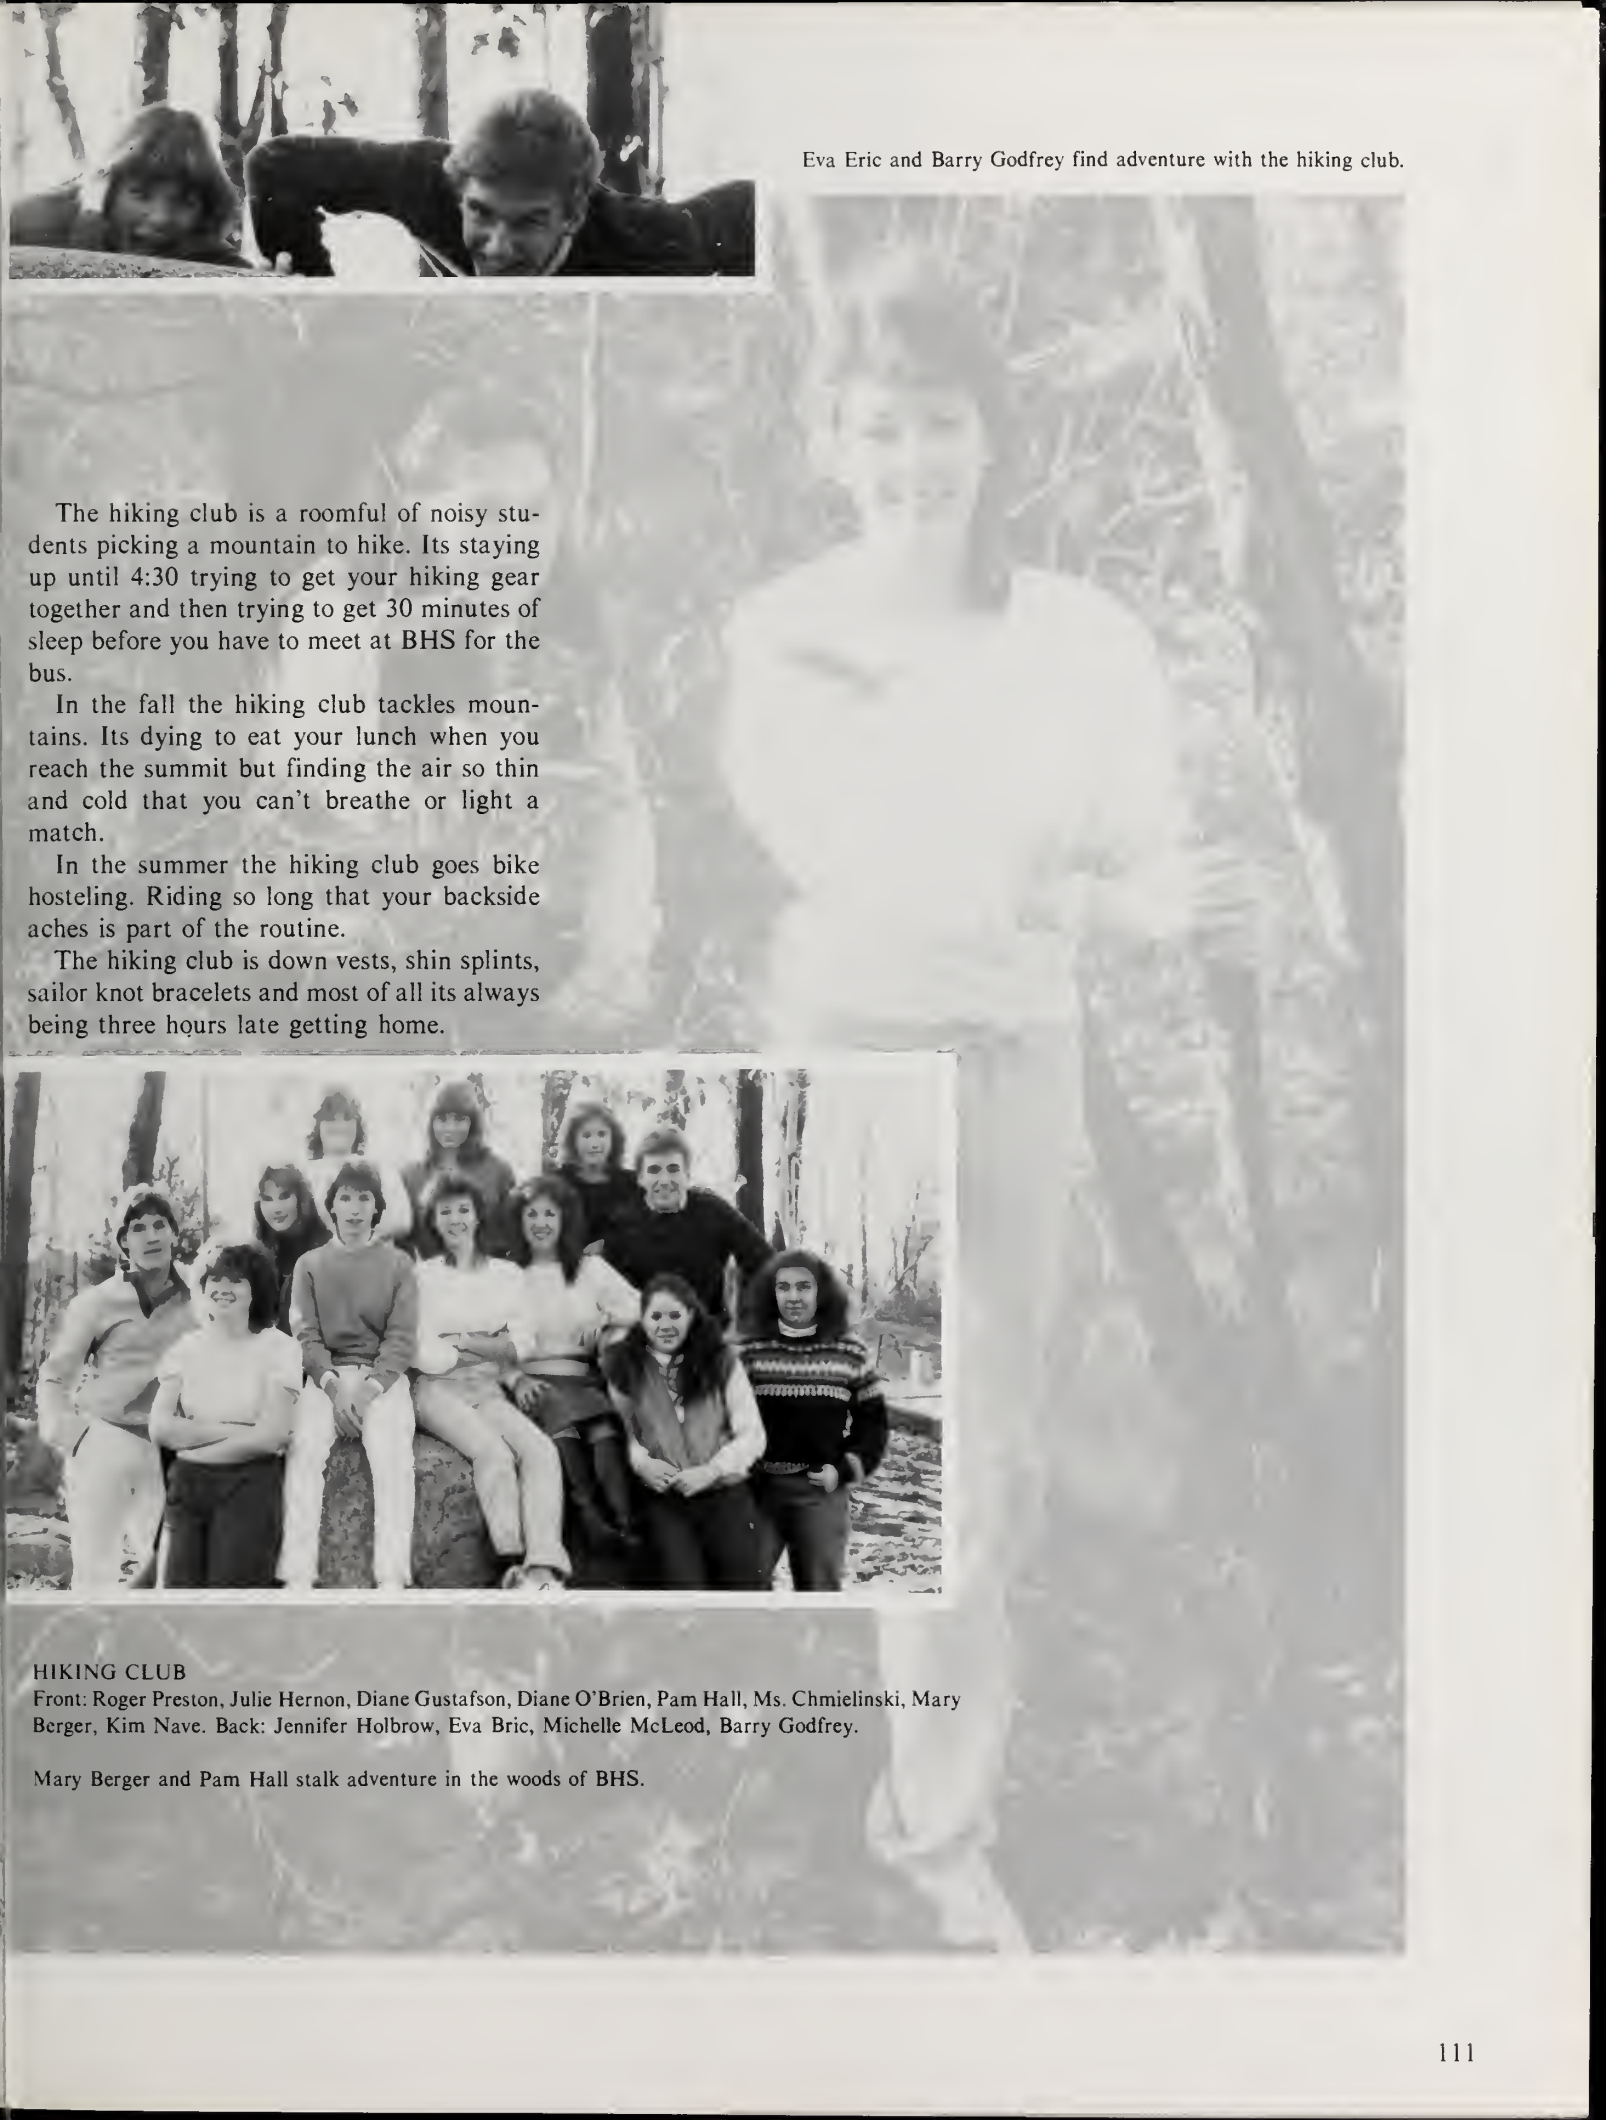

The ski club is a athletic group of young skiers who get their thrills schussing down a mountain at incredible speeds. Racing is part of the attraction of belonging to the ski club, but for most its just the chance to participate in an outing that depends on no one's schedule but your own. Fellowship and the chance to improve your skills are the goals of most skiers.

Joining Mr. Carson in running the ski club this year are Mr. Schuhwerk and Mr. Nelson.

The hiking club is a roomful of noisy students picking a mountain to hike. Its staying up until 4:30 trying to get your hiking gear together and then trying to get 30 minutes of sleep before you have to meet at BHS for the bus.

In the fall the hiking club tackles mountains. Its dying to eat your lunch when you reach the summit but finding the air so thin and cold that you can't breathe or light a match.

In the summer the hiking club goes bike hosteling. Riding so long that your backside aches is part of the routine.

The hiking club is down vests, shin splints, sailor knot bracelets and most of all its always being three hours late getting home.

The Future Medical Club has been in existence for a long time. It provides a chance for those interested in the medical field to get some valuable experience by working in the nurse's office.

Club members participate in many activities in order to earn money for their scholarship fund. Some of the fund raising activities involve selling coffee and donuts to the night school students and selling candy or flowers during the day.

The club gives students the opportunity to learn first hand what working in the medical field will be like. Along the way, it has turned out some fine doctor candidates.

LIGHTS, ACTION...

HEADS UP PLAY

The 1983 soccer season didn't earn rave reviews, but it was a good performance. With a record of 8-4-6 the Wamps just missed qualifying for post season play. They were very competitive and finished third in the league bested only by Needham and Dedham. Many of the Wamps were recognized by the opposition for their intense play. Both Brian Murray, a stopper back and excellent deep defender, and Bill Cummings, a midfielder and hot scorer, were named to the Bay State League all star team as first team players. Two more Wamps were granted honorable mention status on the all star teams: goalie John Devin and right winger, Walter Volpe.

Two other seniors were crucial to the Wamps success this season. At wing full-back Jack Fitzgerald played with steady determination all season, while at sweeper back Steve Murray dominated as the steadiest tackler.

Seasons don't allow replays, so the talented underclassmen will carry on next year. Sure to be in the limelight are Will Willoughby, Jim Conley, Chris Martin, John Riordan, Kevin Dauphinais and Tom Fisher.

Goalie John Devin makes one of countless saves during the season. Will Willoughby (3) tries to outmaneuver his opponent to head the ball. Tom Fisher (14) and Will Willoughby react to the developing play at midfield. (16) gets the ball past the Framingham South defender. Coach Carson and defensive specialist Jack Fitzgerald go over game strategy. Joe Canavan pushes the ball up past a screen of defenders. POMPOMS & MEGAPHONES

The cheers and routines created by the 1983-84 cheerleaders have proven that successful performing requires significant strength as well as enthusiasm and pep. Complex formations with suspended performers have replaced the simple pyramids of the past.

The styles may have changed and the competition for innovative and dynamic cheers become more intense, but the zippy personality of the cheerleaders has remained the same.

Maryanne Filippone stated, "I like to cheer because it means I'm being an active part of the school. I also like to watch sports, so cheerleading lets me be more of a fan."

Kathy Bradford agreed. "I like to cheer at games because I feel like a supporter. I enjoy getting the crowd to cheer with me."

Jill Fisher, Chrissy Brodeur and Diane Gustafson lead the fans in a cheer with their athletic variation on a jumping jack. Part of being a good cheerleader is paying attention to the progress of the game or match. Deidre Stearns, Cathy Burke and Kathy Bradford get lined up for a cheer. Being a cheerleader means performing AND many practice sessions to perfect cheers and create routines and formations.

TOUGHEST YARDS

If the coach could have written the script for this year's season he couldn't have asked for a much better scenario than this year's impressive 7-3 record. The season was far better than those of the recent past and the best performance by a BHS squad since 1970. Despite many injuries including several which required surgery to correct, the team hung together and plowed under opponents with their most exciting offense in years. The defense was even better holding many opponents scoreless. Thanksgiving is traditionally a big game with the Braintree-Milton rivalry going back many years. In one of the highlights of the season, Braintree pummeled Milton 20-0. The Homecoming game was equally thrilling as Braintree's staunch defense throttled the offensive threat of Dedham.

Both the fans and the coaches were very pleased with the accomplishments of this year's athletes. Coach MacAllister stated, "This year's squad has set a precedent of quality play, togetherness and enthusiasm that next year's squad will have to work hard to duplicate."

Coach MacAllister makes an observation as Dan Mahoney and Coach Chute listen intently. Rick Novio, Jim Mollica, John Raffa and Joe Zanghi pull out and block while Dan Mahoney rolls out against Weymouth North. On defense Tom McLaughlin, Dan Lambert and Peter O'Neil trap a Weymouth running back for a loss. Tom Murphy provided consistent two way play all season. John McLaughlin helped in wrapping up the Weymouth rushing game. Tom Murphy put a crushing block on as Ray Campisi scampered for a long gain.

The performance of this year's volleyball team was one of determination, courage and heart. These indestructible stunt women earned several honors for themselves and for BHS. First, they earned first place in the BSL with a 17-1 record, sharing the lead with Natick. Second, they were seeded first in the Central division of the state volleyball tournament. In pool play, Braintree was the only team to win their pool without suffering a defeat. Finally, they advanced to the Semi-finals — further than any other BHS or BSL volleyball

This season's memories had great reviews in every respect. Remember a comeback win over Norwood, a game in which the score was 0-11 and Braintree reversed the odds to win 15-11. Remember BHS vs. Wellesley. With the match tied at 1-1, Braintree came back and overpowered Wellesley 15-0 in the final game. And recall Natick vs. BHS. The lead changed hands nine times. The score was tied ten times and Braintree finally won 17-15. Think back on the tournament. The score was 5-14. Medway needed only one point for the win. BHS came back to squelch Medway, 16-14. Again BHS came back from near defeat in the game with Millis. From 5-12, BHS turned it around to triumph, 16-14.

This was a season never to be forgotten as classic films are never forgotten. It will be remembered by another banner proudly displayed in the gym lobby, signifying that for 1983 Braintree reigned as BSL champions.

SCORING PUNCH

The 1983-84 girls' varsity soccer season got affirmative reviews from coach Ray Willock. This was Braintree's best soccer team yet, with the most wins, most points scored, and most goals in one season. The girls seemed to get most of their stage fright out of the way in the beginning of the season with some early losses. Once they knocked off Walpole (2-0), they started to roll in one of their best seasons ever. The team managed to produce five candidates for the all-league team: tri-captains Chris Hannigan, Linda Rhodes and Lisa Olivere, and Rita Nevulis and Sue Fraser.

Leading scorer, senior Jean Laiosa missed getting the nomination for league honors, but without her hustle and heart the season would have turned out very differently.

Understudies who will step into leading roles next season are: Jennifer Mattes, Kim Litchfield and Rita Nevulis. With the marked improvement in the second half of the season, the team can anticipate an even better record in 1984. The Wamps closed the curtain on the season with a 7-7-2 record.

A GENTLEMAN'S SPORT

The BHS golf team's premiere was marked by a large turnout and great enthusiasm. However, with eligibility problems and other competing sports opportunities, the team thinned out to a devoted eighteen players. Out of all the various members of the team Peter Carr was the only one to distinguish himself and receive the prestigious varsity letter.

Several underclassmen may become players for the future: Mark Anderson, John Balcom and Kevin Casey. Mark Anderson was nominated for the league all-star squad with a nine hole average of four strokes per hole over eight matches. In the wings readying for next year are Paul Haddad, Richard Mazzola, John Suga, Paul Anderson and Kevin Healy.

The team was competitive with a 4-4 record. Next year looks to be a box office smash with understudies moving up to starring roles.

HIGH SLICKING

It was a cast with few veteran actresses. The competition as usual in the fierce BSL was especially tough with Norwood and Walpole leading the opposition teams. The script wasn't hard to anticipate. Put in lots of hard work and hope that your efforts will be enough to seal a few victories.

2-12-4 was a record which earned the field hockey team eighth place in the league. Within those disappointing figures were some great games and memorable performances. Cheryl Denton had another fine season in goal with 205 saves against the high-scoring opposition. Junior Joanna Stanton led the team in scoring with eight goals and one assist.

The final games of the season proved to be the most exciting. The strong Milton team (12-4-1) needed only a tie or a win to make it to the post season tournament. Braintree gave the Milton wildcats a real battle and settled for a heroic 2-2 tie.

Improvement marked the season for the Wamps as their second half statistics were a great improvement over earlier games. Elaina Cushing distinguished herself by being selected a Bay State League all star. Others contributed their efforts to the cause including seniors Valerie Vining and Lisa Menadue.

LONELY MILES

A lack of veteran distance runners and the fact that team members did not condition themselves properly during the summer led to a disappointing 1-8 record this year for the cross country team. Add to that the fact that the leading runner had a tonsilectomy during the first week of practice and you have the scenario for a difficult season.

Frank Small and Kevin Donovan were the leading runners for BHS in 1983. Both will return with experience for the next season. The rest of the team distinguished themselves by their perseverance and intelligence if not by their times. Tri-captains Robert Walsh, Chris Collins and Barry Hume all competed and still managed to place within the top five percent of their class academically.

The improvements through the season were hopeful but the BSL with its long three mile races proved too tough for the Wamp runners.

Kevin Donovan and Steve Coleman cruise over the course in Framingham. Stretching out properly is crucial to cross country runners. Bob Walsh goes through his customary stretches. Coach Butler confers with the opposition as the finishers are counted. Stretching out the hamstrings is the best way to avoid injuries. Barry Hume works out before the meet. Look out Boston College and the Celtics. Here comes the varsity basket ball team with athletes about to achieve fame. Early in the season, inexperience and team height was a problem. Team height is not the kind of problem that can be solved in one year, but future prospects are brighter as the talented group of underclassmen find their way to starting roles.

Mainstays on the team this year are captain Steve Kirby, a three year starter, and Gary Smith. Steve averaged 11 points per game this year and was the leader in points, assists and steals. Gary Smith is a strong rebounder averaging 10 boards per game, but scores consistently as well, and future prospects seem good. Senior Rich Stearns praised the underclassmen, "There's a lot of talent in these young players. Probably the most talent we've had in basketball in the past four years."

Coach Fredericks came in for some praise too. A senior on the team volunteered, "He's a good coach with a reputation for turning out winners." This year that hope will not be realized, but next year may be the one.

The mix of seniors, juniors and sophomores of the girls varsity struggled courageously through a very difficult season. A general lack of height made it difficult to compete against the top teams in the league who had no such disadvantage. With the dominance of Norwood, Walpole and Needham and the improvement of North, Milton and Dedham, the girls had little room to maneuver.

Not all the statistics were disappointing. During the season turnovers decreased and foul shooting percentage improved by 50%. Outside shooting was even a bigger plus as the percentage of shots made climbed steadily throughout the second half of the season. Defense became more aggressive and rebounding more fierce.

Probably because the athletes were so dedicated and so cohesive, the season was still a success despite the scores. Though the disappointments were many, the team members didn't get down or criticize each other. While not in the mold of basketball powers where the game is a year round "occupation", the BHS season was played out with enthusiasm and class. Practice was a time for improvement. The experience of enduring such a season and coming out of it a stronger person carried lessons of desire, dedication, loyalty, pride and passions that will last a lifetime.

UNTQ THEMSELVES

The classic grace, strength and agility connected with girls gymnastics is certainly obvious every time the 1983-84 team takes the floor during a meet. Led by tri-captains Kerry Carney, Kerri Swain and Terry Woolf the team has scored no lower than a 115.5 this season. Not only are the seniors on the team strong competitors, but the wealth of talented underclassmen means that the great tradition of girls' gymnastics at BHS will continue for the foreseeable future.

Juniors have proven to be major point winners. Even freshmen are catching the judges eye. In a sport like gymnastics the contributions of all competitors are important. For Kerry Carney, 1984 has been her finest year. Her improvement has made her an asset in all four events.

On the balance beam, Kerri Swain and Terri Woolf are solid competitors. On the difficult uneven bars, Mary Tosone is having her best year as well as scoring well in the vaults. Sharon Heraty has been adding to the BHS scores for three years as a member of the varsity and is scoring impressively in the vaults and the unevens.

For the first time in many years the boys gymnastics team does not have a senior on the squad. This lack of experience has meant that the strong core of juniors on the team as well as the talented sophomore crew have been called on to assume scoring responsibility for the group. The best scores the boys have been able to accumulate are in the high nineties with hopes of breaking one hundred before the season closes. The dream of being in the top half dozen teams in the state will have to wait until the 1984-

HIGH FLYERS

85 year when the team is talent heavy with senior performers.

Besides being a young team, the squad has been beset with injuries and illness. Scoring well under such adverse condition is unusual. However, even with key gymnasts out of the lineup, the scores for the team have been edging upward each match.

The developing team looks on the year as one for improvement eagerly awaiting next year when five strong senior athletes will hopefully dominate the opposition.

Greg Natale and Jim Kelly practice holds on the very difficult rings. Greg in addition uses a split in his demanding floor routine.

POWER PLAY

Much of last year's team had graduated and they had been replaced with willing but untested athletes. The dramatic first two games of the season proved to the league that BHS was not going to be a pushover despite the youth of the squad in 1983-84.

In the opening match against Wellesley, Braintree punished the opponent with a stunning 5-0 shutout. Co-captain John Devin in goal was great in net shutting out the Wellesley scoring attack.

John has worked his defensive magic against many of the BSL teams.

Leading the team in scoring this year was junior forward Chris Googins. On the same line with Chris were Joe Sanfilippo and Mike Connelly. BHS forwards Brian Foster, Bob O'Toole and Jim Norris combined for goals in crucial mo-

Leading the defense were seniors David Howie and Mike Jacobson, the only starter on defense to return this year. Mike was capable of leading the rush up the ice on power plays but was strongest on defense.

The BSL is notorious for tough competition. This year was no exception. Despite a slump at mid-season, the team worked to improve and remain in the upper echelons of competition.

Joe SanFilippo faces off against Natick Dave Howie eludes the Natick forward as he races for the puck behind the Braintree goal. Joe Tricomi (15) waits for a pass while Mike Quigley positions himself to assist. Jim Norris slides into the pile up against the boards as Joe Tricomi freezes the puck. In a dramatic save in net John Devin foils the Natick forward as Dave Howie and Joe Sanfilippo cover the goal mouth.

SLICK MOVES

Braintree's veteran wrestlers did something which few BHS teams of the recent past have been able to accomplish. They won matches. Although not in a class to defeat wrestling powers like Quincy or Norwood, the squad made a step in the right direction by improving their position and becoming more competitive.

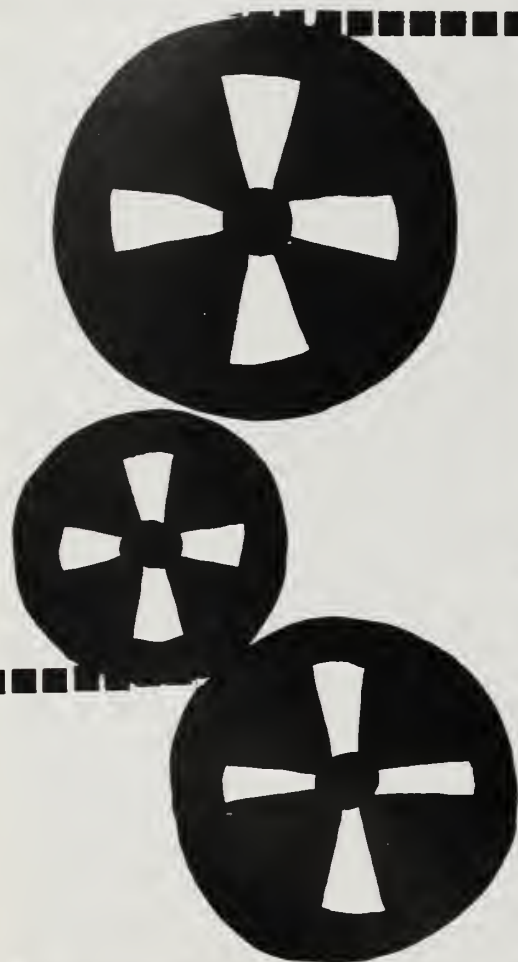

Sixteen wrestlers made the squad this year. Twelve filled weight categories in the varsity division and the remaining four wrestled at the JV level. Next year may see all twelve slots on the JV squad filled as well.

Many wrestlers were strong contenders in their weight class. Brian McGourty, a freshman, was powerful in the 100 lb. division and had accumulated a 8-3 record at midseason. Tri-captain Tom Presutti a senior was extremely strong in the 128 lb. class with a sparkling 11-1 mark. Tri-captain senior Kevin McCullough (8-4) was very steady and a team leader. Also adding power to the squad was senior tri-captain Chris Lizotte. Dave Norton was perhaps the most improved wrestler this year as he wrestled in the tough 157 lb. class.

The steady improvement in the wrestling squad this year is a tribute to their determination. Now that the team has broken through the psychological barrier against winning against BSL opponents, the future should be brighter.

STRAIGHT AIM

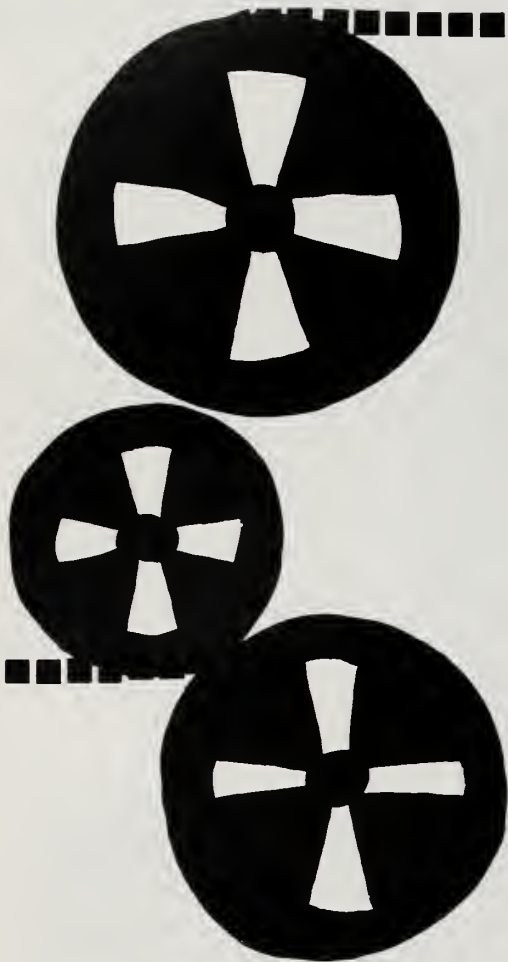

Home range at the Braintree Rifle and Pistol Club may not seem like much, but worse sites are routine in the travels of the Rifle team. Being a part of the team takes more than just skill in marksmanship. You have to prove your mettle by searching through mounds of shooting jackets to find yours. You must juggle your sound-deafening ear muffs, goggles, ammo, glove, and strap as well as your rifle and that's before you can even start shooting.

Once a competition starts, the real fun begins. Everyone's main concern after winning, of course, is how their score affects their average. One bad score can ruin an average, while a good day can rescue it.

Away matches are real trials. Long bus rides to places like Gloucester and Bedford can get very boring. Team members have various methods of coping. There are the rowdies, the sleepers, and the Walkmans. On the way back however, no one can sleep. Candy fights, or verbal abuse sessions, sometimes result when everyone temporarily forgets they are in high school.

The 1983-84 indoor season was exciting and encouraging with key performances by juniors and underclassmen and many novice senior athletes. Led by seasoned veterans co-captains Jim Mollica and Barry Hume, the hopes of a good season could be realized.

Seniors Peter Carr, Paul O'Brien, Chris Keefe and Rich Gallagher were strong performers in their first year of indoor track participation.

This season's squad showed courage and perseverance with many inexperienced athletes learning that competition takes more than just showing up for meets. Most learned that the quality of a true athlete is to strive to surpass your previous best performance.

Personal records included: Jim Mollica 4:57; Chris Keefe 5:59.95; Rich Gallagher 5:06; Barry Hume 1:21; Tom Kelley 1:25; Pete Carr 35.2, 5'8"; Paul Schmitt 1:29; Paul O'Brien 5.9; Fred Bickford 7.6 5'10"; Pete Coleman 12:30; Jerry Riordon 39' 9 1/2".

Melissa Gonsalves does the honors for Debbie Flanders. Katie Fiore smiles through the most difficult part of the Pep Squad performance at the Homecoming Pep Rally. Karen Sturzenacker, like the rest of the squad, had to spend hours practicing in the hallways after school or on the parking lot to make sure that the routines were perfect. Co-captain Melissa Gonsalves led the group at the pep rally. The Homecoming Parade down Washington Street gave the Pep Squad a chance to strut their stuff for the spectators en route. Captain Lauren Barnes was the epitome of the Pep Squad person as she flawlessly executed her routines at Homecoming.

BHS ROCKEETS

The 1983 Pep Squad was a spirited, dedicated group of girls who performed at the halftime show at each football game and the homecoming pep rally. They could be seen in the first floor halls on rainy days perfecting their routines by putting in hours of sweaty practice. Sunny days found them working out on the north side parking lot. "Peppers" put up with cold rain, muddy fields, chilly weather and last minute changes in their routines all in the name of school spirit and dedication.

The Pep Squad always adopts the most popular tunes and fashions their routines around these hits. This year's knockout performances were done to "What a Feeling" from Flashdance and

"Beat It" by Michael Jackson. The BHS marching band provided the outstanding melodies and enhanced the performance.

The consensus among the squad is that there is a feeling of pride in performing well. Betty Papoulidis, who was sidelined for the performing season with a broken arm, stated, "The long hard practices were worth it when you experienced the excitement of performing and the pleasure of seeing the fan's appreciation."

MARCHING MUSIC

The Marching Band experienced a year of transition under its new band director Mr. Shaffer. The group was small in number and consisted mostly of freshmen. During the course of the marching season both the playing and marching abilities of the band improved steadily. Many hours of practice on the parking lot resulted in the dramatic improvements in the band's performance style.

While small in number the band was "large" in school spirit. As anyone in attendance at the football games witnessed, school spirit and school pride were well represented from within the band. This spirit was not even dampened by the torrential rain during the Walpole

The band will continue to experience growth and success as the number of players will be increasing during the coming year. This transition year has brought major changes but has also built a solid foundation for the years to come.

The power of Rick Welch was needed to blast out the tunes in the brass section. Majorettes Karen Tangherlini, April Tangherlini and Donna Short led the band during the homecoming parade down Washington Street. Chris Davis and Paul Kump had many opportunities to play the Braintree fight song as the Wamps piled up touchdowns this season. Larry Duggan was a standout in the saxophone section. Mike McGurn, Rob Lesenechal and Steve Fisher trooped the colors during Homecoming. Daily practice on the parking lot was required to whip the band into shape.

Whenever a young actor or actress comes to Hollywood with stars in their eyes, they always picture themselves on a stage accepting the Oscar, the most prestigious award in film-dom. Starting out, many watch everything they do and try to excell in every aspect of the acting craft, for they know that the competition is fierce. Realizing that the Academy Awards are given for various qualities, future stars don't have to limit themselves in their expressions. With experience, they can make a name for themselves by acquiring a special style or flair. After long years and hard work, their high aims are rewarded by recognition from their peers. An acceptance speech marks their arrival into the charmed circle of Academy Award winners.

At Braintree High, the freshmen are much like those young actors arriving in Hollywood. They conform to the norm until they are secure enough to let their own unique personality show through. At the start, they simply steer in the direction of the familiar.

By senior year, those with special qualities have distinguished themselves sufficiently to have attracted the attention of their fellow seniors. Those of the Class of 1984 who have been voted by their peers to the Academy Award slate are known throughout the school for their special attributes. Whether they excell in talent, personality or other traits, they have distinguished themselves from the crowd.

MIKE JACOBSON,

The Academy is proud to present the 1984 awards to those persons who have excelled in their field. We would like to congratulate those whose accomplishments have served to establish them in the proud tradition of previous Braintree High School winners. Only the rare few ascend to the level of Academy Award recipient. This year's winners are a rare breed.

The tension mounted. Hundreds of ballots were laboriously counted by hand. Gradually patterns of voting emerged. Some races were painfully close with many nominees getting votes. Other races were decided early as the Class of 1984 made their choice virtually unanimous.

As the winners for 1984 were posted, small crowds gathered in the lobby outside the main office. The choices rated smiles in some cases and were enthusiastically greeted. Another year of voting for superlatives had come and gone. The senior class had made its choices for the 1984 Academy Awards plain.

They party, cavort, laugh and scream with delight as the winners are announced. Some are disappointed. Others could have won several categories if duplication were allowed, and some could care less recognizing the fact that superlatives are for many a passing fad, a momentary curiosity. Still the superlatives of 1984 did enough to distinguish themselves for posterity that they are immortalized forever in the essence of their categories.

The Academy Award is the highest praise in the world of show business. And the Academy Award serves the same purpose though for much different categories at BHS. Oscar probably collects dust on many a former winner's mantle. These awards probably will end up on a dusty bookshelf.

WINNERS ALL

1993-94 PRODUCTION

Jean Laiosa, Suzanne Abruzzese, David Howie, David Dougherty, Frank Richardi, Kim Suga, Kim Geezil, Roger Preston, Bryan Jones and Joanne Regan were clearly enjoying themselves at the Junior Prom. Christine Zinzopoulos and Joe D'Ottavio made a handsome couple as they enjoyed the night out at the Sheraton Tara.

CAST PARTY

The Junior Prom was packed with party-goers

The gala Junior Prom was our first taste of the fine life. Few were deterred by the expense of $45 tickets or by the cost of tuxedos, limosines, corsages and gowns. In fact, judging by the number of couples who came in color-matched outfits, shopping for the perfect clothes ensemble only added to the excitement.

Strolling into the sumptuous Sheraton Tara lobby while the cameras were flashing was as close as most would come to the thrill of opening night or a film premiere. Dressed to the teeth, the Braintree crowd at the Tara looked like a celebrating cast from Paramount or Universal studios.

Plenty of folks had opinions about the prom. For Anne Wright, "The best thing about the prom was the day after." Tina Caddick was enthusiastic about the band. "They played great dancing music along with some good old songs."

One thing everyone pretty much agreed on was that the food wasn't the best. Kara McDonough had one super observation to make, "The best thing about the prom was my date's best friend."

Mugging it for the camera, Kevin Lane gave Diane DeLuca a big hug. Marianne Grace and Leanne MacGillivray were maneuvering on crutches, but their dates didn't mind. Rachel Barron and her date were all smiles. Pinning on Jake Burke's boutonniere, Jackie Naughton was careful to get it just right. Mike Carlino helps Kristen Helfrich from the limo.

Marianne Filippone and Robin Janovsky were some of many who eagerly awaited the coming of age ceremonies connected with senior status. Mike Gear and Chris Greene waited in the workstudy office to check on their hours for the week. The end of their junior year just faded away as Missy Spadea, Steve Conrad and Monique Rumsey can attest. Sheri Oberstein uses her artistic ability in E201 as junior year ended.

UNDERSTUDIES

When the seniors graduated, juniors ruled the school

When a young aspiring actor or actress comes to Hollywood they dream of becoming a star.

When freshmen enter Braintree High they dream of one day becoming wise, mature seniors. By the time they reach junior status they've experienced most of the highs and lows of secondary school. And by the end of their junior year, they are ready for the dream to become reality.

Proclaiming that "Seniors do it better" and participating in the rites of passage of Seniormania Week remind everyone that the time of being an understudy is coming to a close and the time for starring roles is approaching.

Dennis Waters was ready for the next level of difficulty in his industrial arts class. Boston College might have been Joe Stover's goal as he and Bob MacLeod vegged in the pit.

For Paul Beatrice it would be another year of balancing work and homework. Kerri Swain, Donna Doherty, Dawn Cedrone and Terry Wolfe would have another year to practice their pose.

Seniors do it Better!

Seniormaniamania week every spring is the dress rehearsal for the next year's production. During the week of June 5th, everyone searched high and low in attics and cellars for the most bizarre and imaginative costumes of the year. The script called for everyone to get physical on Monday, go Greek on Tuesday, hit the beach on Wednesday, find a screwball hat on Thursday, and wear blue and white showing their school spirit on Friday.

Every year the production gets a little more complex and this year's experience followed the pattern. Every day seniors showed up in the hallways distinguished by their unique outfits. Some outfits brought stares, especially bodies wrapped in toga-like sheets. Others reacted to different costumes.

Helen Baraggia admitted to liking Beach Day the best because "It gave me a chance to see all those legs."

Cheryl Denton rides the waves at Braintree High School. Jerry Riordan, Kevin McCullough, Mary Tesone, Jackie Naughton, Jackie Quinn decked out in their jogging duds on Sweatsuit day. Chris Hannigan flounders in a parking lot. Showing off the latest in sandal fashions are: Larry Duggan, Dawn Cedrone, Joanne Donovan, Lisa Menadue, Carol Feeney, Maureen McDonough, Tom Hudson, Jean Laiosa, Jean Golden, Lynn Varraso and Jill Capodanno.

Braintree High stands at the edge of the sparkling waters of Sunset Lake

If asked, some would say that Braintree High would be a perfect setting for a prison movie. The forbidding gray concrete walls project an aura of solidity and despair. On especially gloomy days the resemblance to a correctional institution is uncanny. However, on a bright sunny day, it's an entirely different matter. In good weather passersby might mistake the high school for a college nestled among trees and vast playing fields. The fact that placid Sunset Lake is so close enhances the small college image.

Maria Kokoros was impressed with the maintenance work done over the summer. "I like the new woodchips they put in the Commons area. It looks much better than before.

Michelle MacKinnon found another thing to appreciate. "I love the little chipmunk that is always running around," she said.

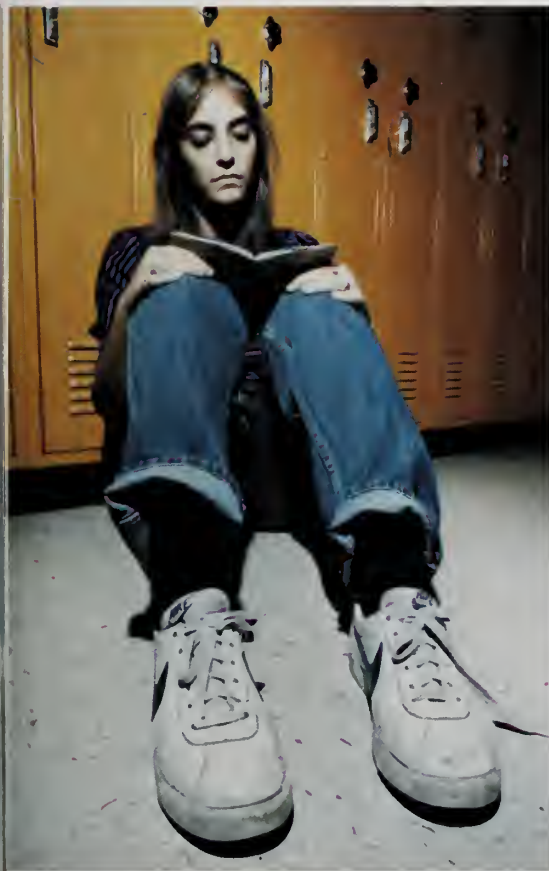

Starting in the fall of 1983, the smoking area was moved to the patio above the loading dock and the Commons was smoke free. Michael Schepici and Sandy Turner chat outside the south side while waiting for their bus.

The old smoking area looked out onto beautiful foliage. The front door of the monstrosity we all call home. Sheri Oberstein and Charlene Johnson enjoy the fresh morning air before classes. The High School can sometimes look scary to a newcomer. David Lavoie, Chris Greene and John Scott enjoy the same north light that the artists do in the northern part of the E-wing. Steve Duggan and Bill Disher enjoy the new smokeless Commons area with a friend.

TRICK SHOTS

When fiction departs from reality, fantasy takes over and the camera and actors are free to improvise and create. Trick photography mines the rich potential at BHS for visual puns and illusions. In a strange sense of scale, Karen Hart torments Lisa Menadue in a scene reminiscent of "Land of the Giants." You get the feeling from looking at Marti Duffy or the handicapped parking sign that it must have been a difficult day for your head is reeling. More distortions give you the view from the eye level of Mr. Limpet or a worm. Trick shots challenge reality.

Karen Hart prepares to launch Lisa Menadue into space with a flick of her fingers. Typist Dave Perfetti is surrounded by the symbols of his work. Marti Duffy appears in fractured images over and over. The view through a fish-eye lens distorts proportions in the male chorus line outside of E-wing. Lisa Iacovello looms larger than life outside of her locker. Armed with an apparently massive hockey stick, Kim Spadorcia winds up to blast the ball.

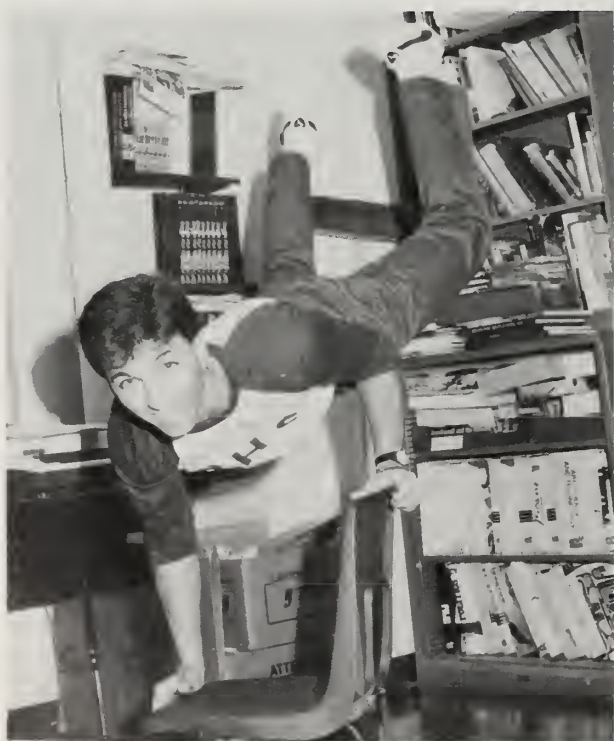

Being a senior requires a certain uniform at different events. This year the senior uniform was even more diverse than usual. On t-shirt day the halls were dotted with blue and white baseball shirts as long sleeve jerseys were used for class shirts for the first time. Those who favored a more conservative style sported traditional short sleeve t-shirts in a light blue.

Wearing a t-shirt inspires lunacy among some members of the senior class. Frolicking, dramatically posed members of the Class of 1984 made T-Shirt Day one for the history books.

Sheri Oberstein makes sure for anyone who isn't sure that yes, she is in print on the 1984 senior t-shirt. Mike Jacobson is a somewhat willing model. Oh, the drama that wearing a t-shirt inspired. Debby Tutty and Lisa Caruso might have been demonstrating why the blood drive was necessary, but more than likely they were just inspired by the high spirits of T-Shirt Day. Two escapees from Mr. Larson's class, Renee Burgess and Laurie Chase play peek-a-boo with the camera. Carol Cruickshank, Maureen McDonald, Dawn Colburn and Rose Grieco rest from the exertions of uniform day. Lisa Menadue leads her troup in laughter: Cheryl Denton, Paul Beatrice, and Michelle MacKinnon. See what the Senior T-shirt did for Bill Simolaridis, it made him STRONG!!

UNIFORMS

PROPS

It's easy to distinguish the freshmen by their props. They're the ones with the yard high stacks of books they carry everywhere from homeroom to the late bus and everywhere in between. But there has always been a distinctive quality about any student in highschool. Everything from dufflebags and knapsacks to very large pocketbooks are used to ease the load of books.

There are other props for specialty areas like drawing, or music. These include some of the more interesting props such as, cameras, guitars and portfolios.

Whether toting mundane pencils and books or sporting a Sony Walkman; props brand each one of us as a student in high school.

Bookcovers are all alike, except for the doodles which reflect the personality of the student. Safety glasses are hard to get used to, but they are a must in the industrial arts department. Class rings are big sellers among boys and girls in high school.

Richie Stearns checks over the machinery in the shop. Mike Jacobson enjoys working at his project. Mrs. Reynolds advises students on their works of art and suggests improvements in their techniques.

After three years as a AV aide, John Curtin has become a resident expert in repairing faulty equipment.

TECHNICIANS

Braintree students get a chance to perfect technical skills

A film may have an irreplaceable cast, famous directors and plenty of financing, but a movie would be a flop if it didn't have people with superb technical skills. These are the unspoken heroes who work behind the scenes. They are the technical experts who construct the sets, photograph the action and blend the soundtrack.

BHS has technicians who do the work which keeps things running. Some practice their skills with Mr. Fisher in the field of automotive repair, others like John Curtin have become experts in the repair of audio-visual equipment.

Opening more avenues is the rapidly expanding area of computers. Some struggle with Pascal, but others find the highly technical challenge of programming fascinating.

Josie St. Aimee delicately sews her cloth. Sean Fay puts the final touches on his pottery.

Tom Presutti gives a questioning look at his neighbor as he finishes his frog in a careful pointillist style.

COSTUMES

An upscale year

Clothes help actors project an image. David Bowie wouldn't be a convincing Ziggy Stardust without his costume. Henry Winkler just wouldn't be the Fonz without his leather jacket and Mr. T without a mohawk and feather earring just wouldn't project the same image.

At BHS the costumes we wear are important also. The "in" clothes like designer jeans, narrow ties, mini skirts or sweats have a very similar purpose to that of movie costumes. They show your peers who you are that day. Are you a punker? A jock? A Valley girl? Or a fashion model? Clothes indicate alot about the mood of the wearer and this year's trend is definitely upscale.

For Craig Gardner suspenders were both for practicality and style. His white version was one of several Craig sported during the year. One of the more unusual fads were friendship beads on tennis shoes. Heavy work boots remained popular with the rugged bunch, while ankle socks with pumps were frequently seen in the halls. Brad Hutchinson and Mark Fitzgerald were some of those who adopted the GQ styles.

The very casual dungaree look has been in for years. Julie Nichols was one of the many who enjoyed this style. If you looked carefully you would notice many bizarre styles in nail polish. Besides silver sparkles there were black, rainbow, polka-dotted and multi-colored nail polishes in use. Some wore Pumas, other Nikes and some dedicated athletes wore New Balance, but it was true that wherever you looked sneakers were big, but few so large as Robert Compton's pair.

Izods and sweat pants Bi-Ebe were popular along with miniskirts, bracelets, ankle socks and elf boots. Chris Kahler and Ann Larsen were two of many to enjoy these styles.

Chris Doran and Bill Manley pulled a fast switch at the prom. Bill did look fetching in Chris' hat as they were caught in a quiet moment. Some courses require extra effort and ingenuity. Sean Baggett sure spooked some passers-by when he popped up in the washing machine. In the washing machine??? Peter Callaghan had only good intentions, but he was about to be cloaked by a mischievous friend in the background.

Sally Graham and Mr. Grant hamming it up at the Junior Prom. Kevin Lane finally stands up to Mr. LeRoy. Wonder Woman Jill Capodanno. Corrine Fillion and Debbie Reade. Brian Lockwood and Dawn Cedrone fight for their dinner at the Junior Prom.

COMEDIANS

They'll keep you laughing and smiling until June

There is one in every crowd and the Class of 1984 certainly isn't an exception. These wild and crazy guys know just the right time to make a joke or inject some silliness. You can always count on them to cheer up a gloomy day with their antics. Their sunny dispositions become trademarks to all who know them. They are the comedians, the Steve Martins and Gilda Radners of Braintree High School. Lurking in the wings might be potential Dan Akroyds or Lily Tomlins ready to spring their zaniness on normal everyday BHS as they manage to find the funny aspect of a situation rather than the staid, average view.

Sometimes the high school resembles ANIMAL HOUSE, and you could swear that there are people so loony that they resemble the MAN WITH TWO BRAINS. It is all part of the comic relief. Without these comedians there would be no funny incidents to recall in the years ahead when we look back at the life and times of BHS. By the way, Sean. How did you get into that washing machine? Everyone would like to know.

ACTORS & ACTRESSES

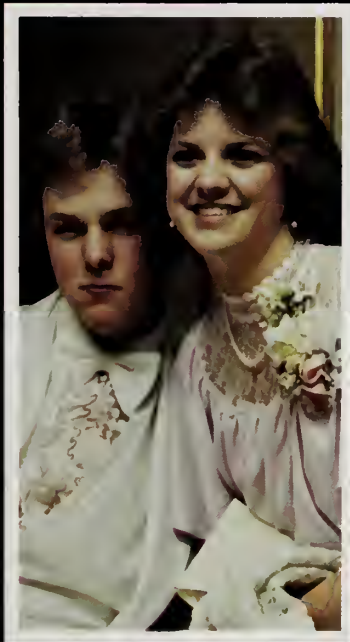

Jean Cleveland and Chris Ciampa were dressed to the teeth as they strolled through the lobby on the way to the Junior Prom. Gowns, tuxedos, top hats and loads of flowers made the members of the junior class look like actors and actresses in a Hollywood extravaganza.

Braintree High School has a class act. Once in a rare while everyone decks out in the finest clothes as if the costume department had dressed the cast for a Hollywood premiere. The same kids you see all the time in the halls become rivals of the glamorous Richard Gere and Debra Wingers of Hollywood.

"Did you see so-and-so with you know who?" A gossip columnist would have a harder time keeping up with high school romance than she would with the superstars.

Bill Brunstom and Renee Burgess put their heads together for a closeup. Kim Cesario and Paul Beatrice flashed winning smiles from their location at tableside. With cash in hand, Rick Gately picked up a tonic from the soft drink bar in the Tara hallway. Corrine Whitehouse and Scott Martin were neatly matched in shades of pink. Tina Caddick and Rick Sullivan had to plan way a head to come up with their color-coordinated purple outfits. Jay Jerneagan and Bryan Jones both picked a great tailor for their matching tuxes. Framed by the antique draperies in the Tara lobby, Todd Holloway and Lisa Caruso posed before the prom began.

PRODUCTION COMPANY

It's not too difficult to locate your own picture as Jean Cleveland discovered in the yearbook office. Keeping track of the incredible amount of paperwork was part of Bill Simolaridis' responsibilities. Learning how to sell ads for the yearbook was something Betty Papoulidis picked up quickly after talking with Ms. Conklin.

"A theme to select, Layouts to design,
Lists to complete, We could be done on time.

We still have time,

We still have time.

Photographs to schedule, Ads to sell, Envelopes to address, So far we're doing well.

We still have time,

We still have time.

Pictures to crop, Memos to write, Photos to label, Wow it's almost night.

We still have time,

We still have time.

Events to cover, Artwork to be done, Data sheets to file, Hurry! here comes the sun.

We still have time,

We still have time.

Yearbooks to sell, Spelling to check,
Seniors to contact, Aw, what the heck!

We still have time,

We still have time.

Now the year is over, and our work is done,
Putting the yearbook together was hard,
Yet it was also fun. And . . .

We still have time,

We still have time.

We've collected many memories,
Of the years that have passed.

This marks the start of your new life,
And the end of your last. But . . .

We still have time,

We still have time . . . "

Cheryl Denton 1984

Tina Caddick had plenty of work to do as she tallied personality votes. Carol Feeney was willing to tackle any job to help meet the yearbook deadlines.

Selecting pictures for the yearbook was one of the fun jobs for Cathy McGinnis, Cristin Riley and Jean Cleveland. Maria Adukonis slaved long hours over the artwork for the yearbook making sure the theme was carried through the book visually. Keeping track of finances and ads was Karin Nauth's job. Stacey Miller handled typing and filing chores.

INCOME AND OUTGO

Sometimes it seems like every minute is spent in buying or selling. The world is just one long preview before the feature film starts and the action is underway. Some of the buying that goes on at BHS involves the essentials in every seniors' life: the class button, t-shirt, portraits, yearbooks and prom tickets. Later there will be more spending as caps, gowns and other paraphernalia of graduation are purchased. To balance off the equation, there is income from flower sales, light bulb sales, refreshment sales at the stand at Hollis Field, sales of jewelry for band trips, car washes and whatever other bright idea for fund-raising happens to occur to students or club sponsors.

Corrinne Converse cooperates with Henry O'Donnell of the Cambridge Studio in sitting for her senior pictures. Some people pay their dues in odd ways. Betty Papoulidis was a casualty of the student government trip to New Hampshire for the annual retreat. Fund raising for many school functions goes on all the time. Jayne Anastasio manned the flower concession while Chris Provenzano made a purchase.

The button read "Seniors Do It Better" and plenty of seniors agreed: Kevin McCullough, Paul Schmitt, Jerry Riordan, Jay Jernegan, Tom Hudson, Paul O'Brien, Jean Laiosa, Ted Finlay, Lisa Menadue, Chris Hannigan, Dawn Cedrone, Cathy Bradford and Donna Doherty. Student government workers give up their Saturdays to raise funds for significant projects. Carol Gorman was handy at the grill during the football pregame warmup. Jay Jernegan and Michael Hickey took care of customers at the refreshment booth. Getting dressed up for senior pictures, filling out forms and orders was an inevitable part of the fall routine for Glenn English.

ON LOCATION

Video games remain a big hit especially with boys and attract people with an ample supply of quarters to arcades. Chris Donahoe enjoyed the atmosphere and the score of Braintree vs. Weymouth. #10 Tom McLaughlin wasn't complaining about the game either.

It's amazing how cameramen can make a studio look like a real location. For true authenticity though it's necessary to go on location, to go the actual setting for the event.

The cast of Braintree High School also goes on location both for fun and work. The BHS cast and crew are likely to be found in places like Hollis Stadium at a Saturday afternoon football game, cruising at the Plaza, at a pizza restaurant or at an arcade trying to outwit a video game. Others go farther afield to Cape Cod beaches or New Hampshire cottages.

Seeing fellow cast members in places outside of the high school grounds expands our understanding of them as people. Their interests and activities take on the color of their surroundings when they are on location.

Jay Jernegan and Marsha Williams take a break from their duties in the concession stand to watch the action on the football field. A Saturday with friends is always nice. Elaina Cushing, Stacey Miller, Jean Cleveland and Tom Kelley share a laugh at Hollis Stadium. Pizzeria Regina's is a great place to hang out on a rainy Saturday. Hollis Stadium, the home of the Wamps is off limits because of structural defects, but the crowds of fans watching the game made do with temporary bleacher seats.

Sue Balfour processes film at the Plaza. Saturday morning is a typically busy time at the pastry counter of Montillio's Bakery in the South Shore Plaza. Many Braintree students hold jobs where they serve the public. Pam Ward assists a customer at the counter of Bergson's Restaurant. Tina Wood serves a bakery customer.

The benefits and temptations of working the concession counter at the Braintree Cinema must be great. Susan Pappas reaches for a selection from the candy counter and Kathy Tack scoops up some hot popcorn for a movie-going customer during their Saturday afternoon shift.

MOONLIGHTERS

Many BHS students work long hours for extra cash

As in any career, when you are being trained and getting established, the pay is low. The description of the starving actor is familiar to everyone. Many Hollywood newcomers find part time jobs as moonlight as waiters or cab drivers to keep themselves financially afloat until their break comes.

Plenty of Braintree High students hold part time jobs. They aren't as dependent for survival on these moonlighting jobs as actors in Hollywood, but the income from a weekend job is important. Some spend their paychecks on clothes, others on dates, others save for college and some sock money away for a car.

Plenty of BHS students are employed by businesses at the South Shore Plaza where they work behind the counters of Brigham's, Pizzeria Regina's, MacDonald's or Bergson's. Others find jobs pumping gas, or doing maintenance work.

Working out in the real world and with the public, the moonlighters gain practical experience for dealing with the real world.

Handling food is a typical method for BHS moonlighters. Joann Vignoni works in the food preparation area of MacDonald's where many other Braintree students hold part time jobs during the week. Regina's Pizza is a popular Braintree hangout and can also boast BHS employees like Theresa Ferent. Year after year Brigham's provides employment opportunities to students like John Najjar.

They line up waiting to get their chance before the camera. They are the hopeful ones, the stars of the future. For the moment, they are extras stuck in the limbo of the underclassmen lacking the status and maturity of seniors. They have their own subculture. This year they even have their own lunch period.

As the population of the high school slowly declines, they have become more important with their own teams or with better opportunities to become valuable members of junior varsity teams or clubs. At the moment they are still learning the ropes and not able to compete on an equal basis with seniors, but it won't be too long before they have the starring roles and other younger replacements are the "extras".

EXTRAS ON THE SET

John Dooley and Wendy Williamson discuss a topic of mutual interest. Lunch is a great time for togetherness. Rich Elworthy and Carol Muello get friendly. Mr. Castonia conducts the freshman orientation to the media center: Laurie Holmes, Susan Aiello, Dan Mahoney, Joe Gozzo, Joe Muello, Margo Jones, Lauren Powers, Matt Pettine, Peter Compton. Joe Joyce and Rick Burke hang around in the precious minutes before homeroom. An armload of book is the mark of a freshman: Karen Ricci, Jennifer Kelly, Kristen Davenport. The benches in the pit are a good place to wait for the buses. Lisa McGee and Lisa Lindsay wait around.

A MAKEUP MAN'S DREAM

Mr. Larson, doubling for the day as Dracula, gave Ann Larsen a good look at his very sharp dental work. Jill Conway had that cuddly, sleepy look as she hugged Raggedy Anne and crept along in her Dr. Denton's. Lynnanne Scammell's clown costume came complete with props as she was caught with Paula Valanzola on her way to the E wing. Ace Aviator and all-around hero, Tom Kelley, flashed a winning grin on Halloween. Mary Burke, Kim Spadorcia and Michelle Sousa were one half of a six pack. Their coordinated costumes were some of the most unique in a day filled with many creative efforts. Rob DaRosa and Dawn Scammell wore some slick threads for Halloween. Corinne Converse polished her nose for the big event.

October 31, 1983 proved to be one big costume party for Braintree High students. Many joined in on this liberating occasion and took the opportunity to show their alter egos, their secret selves. Even the statue at the entrance to the library joined in and donned a Frankenstein cape.

A large variety of costumes sprouted as seemingly normal people were transformed into witches, martians, punk rockers or vampires. Some enterprising individuals went so far as to get together whole wrappers that turned them into bottles of Budweiser and Heineken for a day.

The entire upbeat, inspired event was a treat for the student body, a fine demonstration of involvement and a Hollywood makeup man's dream.

Marti Duffy and Susan Guiney took yearbook orders from last minute buyers. Mr. Grant accepted a carnation from senior Kristen Mowles. Mr. Bregoli was monitoring the situation in the gym when Cathy Burke rose to receive acknowledgement as a nominee for Homecoming Queen. Cheryl Denton's Wamp Week spirit was popping out everywhere. Peter Nesseralla proudly hung the senior chain links. Sean Murphy's smile endured throughout the manufacture of the senior spirit chain. Like the rest of the football team, Kevin McCullough wore his game jersey to all his classes. Larry Duggan and Mr. Shaffer led the jazz band as they entertained during the pep rally. Some of the crowd were less than courteous during the rally, but most were glad to be out of class.

Cathy McGinnis and Mike Oberg share a private moment during the Homecoming Dance. Cecelia Lynch was the choice of the student body for Homecoming Queen. Debbie Reade and Terry Noonan were two of many to enjoy the tunes of a live band. Mike Wentworth and Jean Pinkham, Janice MacNeil and Dave Holbrook had the beat. Diane Gustafson and Scott Browne took advantage of a slow dance. Tom Murphy (43) led the team through the goal posts and on to victory as BHS crushed Dedham. Sue Solletti and the rest of the color guard were participants in the Homecoming parade. The marching band and color guard stepped lively during the parade. The senior float was manned by enthusiastic graduates-to-be Michele MacAleese and Rachel Barron.

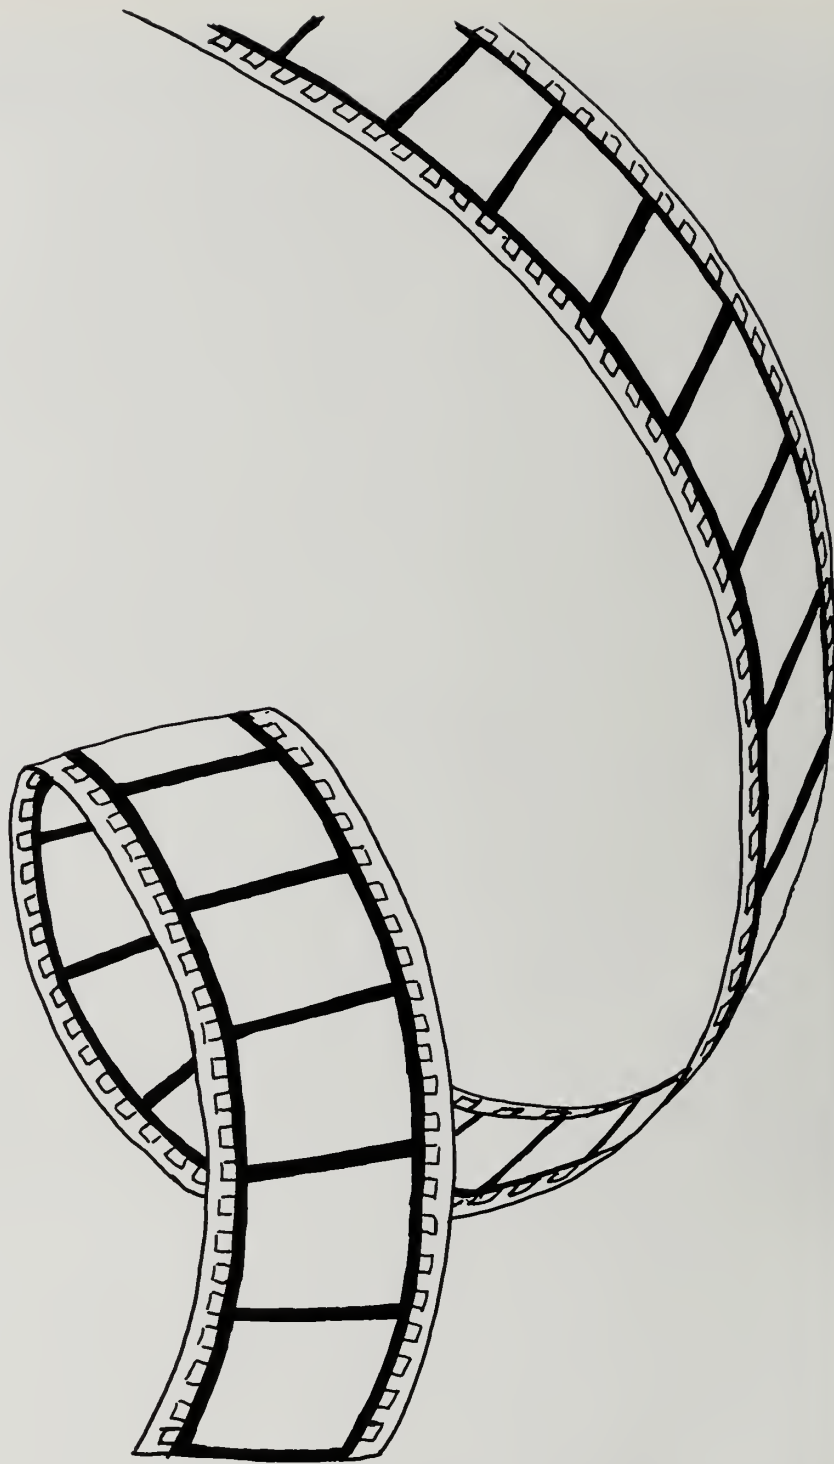

A HEROIC EPIC

The football squad provided plenty of offensive thrills

The day was perfect if a little cold. The band led the parade down Washington Street to Hollis Stadium. This was the last year that football games would be played at the condemned stadium. Colorguard, Pep Squad, majorettes and cheerleaders were avidly watched by the spectators along the route. Braintree's fine football team gave the fans plenty to cheer about in routing Dedham.

A winning afternoon was appropriately sequelled by the magic of Homecoming with the crowning of the Homecoming Queen who will reign like a Hollywood star until 1984. Cecelia Lynch was honored by her selection and will return to crown next year's queen.

When the final frame passes through the projector it signifies the end of the years of arduous work that went into making a film a success. As the credits are screened the many actors and actresses of 1984 inevitable feel pride in having completed a great task. Individual bits of film came to life with the help of many essential workers who labored unknown in the background while the stars shown before the cameras.

The final frame of the 1983-84 yearbook is a beginning as well as a closure. Everyone involved with senior status and the Class of 1984 will move on to bigger and better individual productions. The cast will scatter while the essential production staff remains behind.

Braintree Hospital extends congratulations and best wishes for a SAFE and SUCCESSFUL future.

Since its 1975 opening, Braintree Hospital has continually provided rehabilitative services and programs for the physically disabled in order to promote a return to independent living. Many patients treated over the years are teenagers who were involved in motor vehicle accidents. Driving at high speed or in combination with alcohol and drugs needlessly results in disabling accidents. Don't become a statistic. Drive safely — America's future is in your hands.

So many people have a part in producing a quality yearbook. It's hard to thank them adequately for their efforts. Most people just assume that the yearbook sort of just happens. It's not like that at all. So, thanks to the class of 1984 and their parents for supporting the yearbook with their sponsorships and their purchases. Thanks also to the many local businesses who purchased advertising space in "Frozen Frames". Thanks to the high school faculty and administration for their cooperation and patience. Thanks to the coaches for their help with statistics and reports. Thanks to Ms. Sutherland's English classes for their written submissions.

Individuals played a big part too. Thanks to Jeff Carlino for his help with printing negatives. Thanks to Ms. Caron for handling crises over the phone and to Ms. Pransky for her help with correspondence. Thanks especially to Karin Nauth, Betty Papoulidis and Ms. Reynolds for selling so many ads and helping to keep the cost of the yearbook down. Thanks to Mr. Goldman for his accounting skill. Thanks to Jean Cleveland for all her writing. And to Matt Pettine and Carol Feeney for their early morning cheerfulness. Thanks to Cathy McGinnis for endless artwork and layouts and to Jennifer Sheehan, Doug Tyree, Lisa Sandomato, Chris Daiute, Ken Oliver, Sue Guiney, Steve Fisher and Joe Anderson for their help with sports layouts. Thanks to Cristin Riley for copying and recopying senior page layouts. Thanks to Chris Knowles for his cartoons and to Maria Adukonis for her effective graphic designs which are so important to the theme.

Other people deserve thanks. Herff-Jones and their representative John Carrier, the Cambridge Studios' Henry O'Donnell and Rich Royster, Ms. Christianson, Ms. Cunningham, Bill Simolaridis and all the rest. It takes a lot of people to produce a quality yearbook. But Matt, you kept me sane.

MARIANNE GRACE

As time goes by and days pass by
I think of you and always cry
for you were the best in every way
In so many ways I just can't say
The good times we had are very dear
Laughing and crying, memories shared.
Your smile is glowing in my eyes.
It glows so bright but never dies.
You're a ray of sun on a rainy day or a lovely swan in a clear blue bay.
As time goes on, your light still shines
Your special love, in all our minds.
I'll always love and never forget you, Marianne.

Denise

For every pain that we must bear
for every burden, every care
There's a reason.
For every grief that bows the head
for every teardrop that is shed
There's a reason.
For every hurt, for every plight
for every lonely pain-wracked night
There's a reason.
But if we trust God as we should,
it will all work out for our good.
He knows the reason.

Marianne,

I'll let you know you were liked the best for this must ever be a secret kept from all the rest between yourself and me.

Patti

Marianne (sis),

You were a beautiful addition to my life. No matter how bad things were for you, you always seemed happy and full of smiles. I'm going to miss you, but I'll never forget. Goodbye, Marianne.

Luv,
Your Sis!!

God sent us a beautiful flower.
He named her Marianne.
As warm and cherished memories
unfold like lovely flowers, they bring us comfort and ease our pain during our troubled hours.
Your memory will be with us
ALWAYS, Marianne.
We love you.
We miss you so much.

MARIANNE GRACE

A friend is there
before you know it,
To lend a hand
before you ask it.
And give you love,
just when you need it most.

Gracey,
You're the greatest. Love you forever. Someday I will be with you. Smile. God loves you.

Love,

Ruthie Matranga

I have your everlasting memories, I love you!!

GRUBADA

The Class of 1984 has had the advantage of being able to witness or take part in the events, styles and fads that always will be associated with this year.

In the entertainment world, one name rose above all the others — Michael Jackson. His album "Thriller" was a best seller for months and his style spawned everything from look-alike clothes and dance styles to Pepsi commercials. The breakdancing that Michael Jackson helped to popularize was a big hit at BHS particularly with the underclassmen who worked to master its intricate spins and athletic moves. Out of the way corridors became practice floors for the guys who did shoulder spins and fancy steps to a silent beat.

Dancing was big in the movies too with hits like FLASHDANCE, FOOTLOOSE, BREAKIN' and BEAT STREET pulling in customers. Practically every song that hit the charts had its own video. Originally videos could only be enjoyed on the cable channels. It didn't take long before the local stations were programming videos too. Video tape players became the household appliance of the '80's. There were few teens who didn't own a Walkman type radio.

1984 was also the year of the Olympics. The winter events were held in Sarajevo, Yugoslavia and the summer games in Los Angeles, California. Claiming that Soviet athletes would not be safe in the U.S., Russia and its satellites boycotted the summer games. In local sports, the Boston Celtic green machine edged the fleet Lakers in a classic seven game championship series to win their fifteenth NBA title.

Closer to Braintree, there was plenty going on. The Southeast Expressway was being rebuilt causing major delays and disruption of local traffic. In a matter of days the new Braintree High football stadium was built. The graduating class of 1984 had hoped to christen the stadium with their commencement exercises, but for the third year in a row, the torrential rains eliminated any hope of outside ceremonies.

Presidential politics were a hot topic as Ronald Reagan wondered whether he would face off against Jesse Jackson, Walter Mondale or Gary Hart. Iraq and Iran continued their war in the Middle East. Reagan pulled the Marines out of Lebanon. The Soviet attack on Korean Airlines flight 007 was big news for awhile and then faded fast.

Braintree High students were touched by the style of the year which emphasized brightness. Peddle pushers, bright colored pumps with white ankle socks, aviator sunglasses, off-the-shoulder sweatshirts and miniskirts were in for a time. High top leather sneakers, narrow leather ties, dress pants and dress shirts displaced the ever popular Levis. Hair was worn a bit longer in the back to add a bit to that special look.

AWARD WINNERS

Jay Jernegan welcomed Maureen Brides to the National Honor Society as Bernadette Hamill looked on. Chairman of the Society, Barry Hume, presided. The audience was large and appreciative. Beth Muccini was one of many juniors inducted into the honor society. Receiving the Margaret Puffer Award for excellence in art was Michelle Rice whose work was displayed in the lobby. Ms. Rankin directed the Chamber Orchestra which provided music for the evening event. Cellist Jim Jacobson contributed his talents. Maria Adukonis viewed the art exhibit. Ms. Sundberg presented Karin Nauth, Matt Pettine and Betty Papoulidis with yearbook awards. Barry Hume brought the proceedings to a smooth conclusion.

Violins trilled, spectators strolled amidst the works by seniors in the portfolio program and the Awards ceremony of May 3, 1984 was about to begin. A very large number of students who distinguished themselves in various academic disciplines were on hand for the presentations.

President of the chapter of the National Honor Society, Barry Hume led the induction ceremonies which welcomed new members into the prestigious group. Faculty members presented a total of additional awards to members of all classes who had distinguished themselves by excelling in the sciences, art, music, foreign language, English, social studies, business, mathematics, and music.

THE YEAR THAT WAS

The last regular day of school on May 15th was a day of both happiness and sentiment. Frequently punctuated by loud and raucous celebration the day gradually evaporated as seniors recalled the four hard years of work which brought them to the conclusion of their high school careers. The last glimpse of the life being left behind was taken. Students took a last look at teachers who would fade into memory. Friends would gradually drift apart as life after high school swept them in different direction. Today was a day for remembrances and closeness. Tomorrow was soon enough for the seriousness of jobs, college, the armed services and responsibility.

Josie St. Aimee, Miss Metco and Jill Johnson celebrated at the balloon launch. Renee Burgess, Peggy West, Jean Cleveland, Kevin McCullough, Shawn McLean and Suzanne Moscarelli were surrounded by the balloons stored in the yearbook office. It was high fives, waves and cheers for the first annual balloon launch. Sue Guiney wore her eighty four where you couldn't help but notice it. Debbie Goodwin celebrated with a handful of balloons. John Orsie, Yvonne Dhimitri and Jim Palmer, friend, hung around waiting for the closing ceremonies to begin. Laura Lee Smith and Ruthie Matranga just hung out. Smiles and waves were evident in the crowd that gathered.

WRAPPING IT UP

Braintree High's Class of 1984 initiated a new tradition with the first annual Balloon Launch. Confetti helped too. Balloons rose into the skies above Braintree. The last day of school was a special time for gangs of friends. Anne McDonough, Charlaune Johnson, Lisa Caruso and Chris Robbins shared the pre-launch festivities. Whole mobs were VERY enthusiastic. Lonnie Barnes had it all together. Eric Bulman, Joe Sanfilippo, Simon Phripp and Gary Berlo had the car ready to go. Gina Pizziferri, Jason Caristi, Diane Morretti, Kim Mercurio and Teresa Fitzgibbon were ready to celebrate too.

It was a day of goodbyes, of high spirits. The yearbook staff spent the afternoon inflating 700 helium balloons for the first annual Braintree High Balloon Launch. It was Ms. Schock who initiated the idea of an alternative to the destructive orgy of noise that had characterized last days in the past. The idea of the balloon launch made the Class of 1984 unique in the history of BHS. Classes were dismissed at 2 o'clock so that seniors could congregate separated from the rest of the school population to celebrate and enjoy their last few minutes of high school life together.

During the minutes before the countdown, balloons drifted lazily in the sky, confetti showered the onlookers and yells punctuated the air. In a sort of haphazard rhythm most of the balloons eventually were launched. The crowds drifted away and the last day was history.

Sean Daly, Melissa Lawrence and their friends relaxed in Lombardo's lobby between sets. Artie Gillis and Stacia Genes were looking spiffy despite the weather. Brian Lockwood admired Kathy Bradford dancing. Cathy McGinnis, Mike Oberg, Kim Fiorentino, Bob Compton, Linda Rhodes and Jim Miller mobbed the dance floor. Suzanne and Jody Colbert didn't wear matching gowns. Steve Kirby and Jill Fisher took time out.

A STAR-STUDDED EVENT

The senior prom was a special event for Cristin Riley, Josie St. Aimee and their escorts. Alan Clark, Judy Otto, Mike Gear, Suellen Kettell, Jim Miller and the gang were rocking. From the pre-prom festivities to the final dance it was a great evening. Shawn McLean was ready for action. Will Willoughby stole Karen Hart for one picture. Dan McCue and his date looked smashing. Michael Reeves, John Morelli, Brian Betzger, David Howie and the gang gave the prom the thumbs up salute.

The crystal in the two-story chandelier at Lombardo's in Randolph sparkled reflecting the dazzling Braintree High senior class as they ascended the staircase for the 1984 prom. Tradition decrees that the prom be held the Thursday evening before graduation. This year that meant a prom in the middle of four days of torrential rains. All the elaborate preparations of clothing,

Bad weather didn't stop a large group from enjoying the prom. The forty dollar tickets didn't deter seniors from participating either. May 31st was a dazzler. The Class of 1984 celebrated while others bailed out their basements from the five inches of rain that fell that day.

Following page: Eric Bulman receives congratulations and a scholarship from the Braintree Police Patrol Club. Robert Walsh gave the honor essay as the graduate with the highest grade point average. Lauren Barnes received her cherished diploma. Valerie Vining, an honor society member received her diploma from school committee member Diane Williams. Ms. Moran presented Traci Marino with her scholarship award. Mr. LeRoy addressed his remarks to the graduating class and their guests. Mr. Hopkins and Mr. Grant assisted as Ms. Williams of the Braintree School Committee presented graduates with their diplomas. Karin Nauth received her walking papers from school committeeman Frank Curtis. Jim Miller and Joanne Donovan admired each others diplomas. Both wore the gold cord of the honor society. Maureen Brids had a huge smile for Mr. Tombari as she accepted her scholarship award. Ann Wright accepted her diploma from school committeeman Bob Zanca.

Graduation 1984 had a hard time getting started. The week of May 28th was totally wet. Saturday, June 2nd was no exception. Plans had been made to hold graduation at the newly constructed stadium, but a week of rain turned the new sod into a bog. Even if Saturday had been sunny, the graduates could not have used the field for seating. A decision to hold graduation indoors for the third year in a row was made and broadcast over local radio stations. Waterlogged graduates made their way by car, bicycle and foot to the BHS gym.

HIGH

Class president David Kearney led the 460 members of the Class of 1984 into the gymnasium to the tunes of the band. Robert Walsh qualified for the privilege of presenting the honor essay. Headmaster John LeRoy and Superintendent John Monbouquette addressed the graduates and their guests and then were joined by members of the school committee and the housemasters in presenting diplomas.

Over fifty seniors were awarded scholarships by community organizations. Many more received direct scholarship aid from their college or university. In spite of the rain, it was a gala event and it truly was the grand finale.

Jim Mollica leads the Norwood opposition in the Norwood meet. Chris Lizotte and Tom Kelley hold down the blocks for sprinter Ray Campisi. Paul Schmitt stretches out to place second in the league in the triple jump. Peter Carr clears the bar easily in the high jump. Dave Dougherty vaults himself over the bar. Barry Hume leaps in the long jump.

The Braintree dynasty which had dominated the Bay State League with five straight first place finishes and forty-one consecutive victories against league opposition came to an end this year. The Wamps finished third in the BSL with a record of 7-2. This year's losses to Needham and Norwood were disappointing, but the strong Braintree contingent still finished 5th overall in the division I state relays.

This was a year for growth and fine individual performances. Excelling the shot put and discus, Rick Novio was named to the Bay State League all star squad. Ray Campisi was honored with the Bob Mur-rom trophy as the most valuable performer for the 1984 season. Dean Lawrence put on a show in the shot put becoming a division I finalist. Also shining in the spotlight were Paul Schmitt who placed second in the triple jump in the BSL and Tom McLaughlin who captured second place in the 440 yard run.

SET POINT

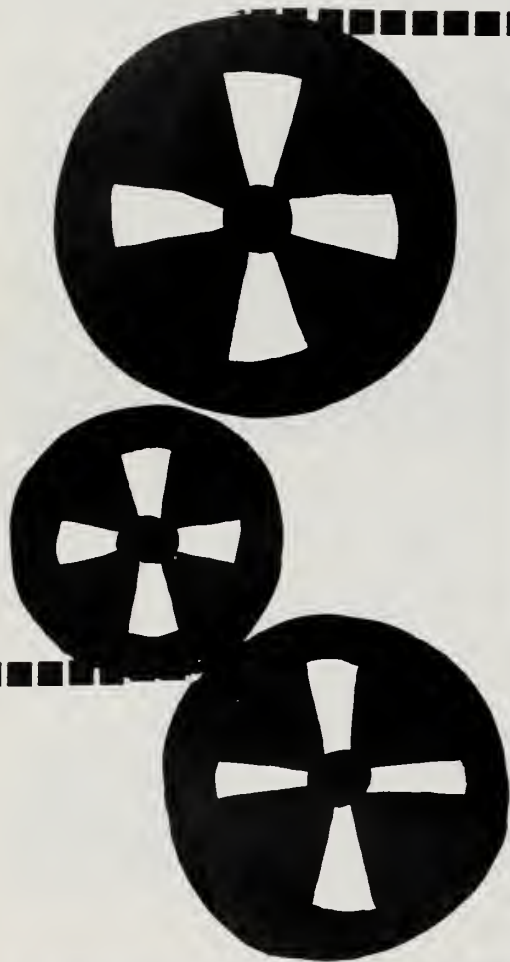

In the twenty years Mr. Carson has coached boys' tennis there never has been a year like this one. The season record for the team was a strong 13-5, the best in the last two decades for a BHS squad. As the box scores show the whole team got into the act with consistent scoring.

Junior Will Willoughby playing at the difficult #1 singles position led the way with a 15-3 personal record. Flashy freshman Joe Mello contributed a 14-1 mark in the #2 and #3 singles slots. Junior Steve Keohan alternated with Mello in the second and third singles positions and chipped in a sizzling 15-3 record.

Making the Bay State League All Star team this year were Will Willoughby and Joe Mello. Such an honor is rarely accorded to freshman players. For the first time in many years Braintree qualified for the Eastern Massachusetts Team Tournament. BHS battled with Newton North and lost 1-4 with Joe Mello scoring the only Braintree point in the #2 singles spot.

Despite the disappointing loss, this was one of the finest seasons ever in the history of varsity tennis at Braintree High.

OVERHEAD SMASH

The 1984 was a difficult rebuilding year for the Girls' Varsity Tennis team. The girls finished the season at 5-13, but hidden in the box scores were four difficult 2-3 losses in the gruesome Bay State League. The prospects for the 1985 season are bright with the entire squad returning. For the first time in many years the squad has not been depleted by graduation.

Leading the Wamps in scoring was junior Amy Willoughby who posted an 11-6 personal record. Amy played in the #1 singles slot and consistently faced the best opposition in the league. Playing at #2 singles Nancy McParland chalked up a 8-8 mark. Nancy also served a team co-captain along with Kathy White.

The Boys' Baseball team finished the regular season at 15-3 which was good for a strong second in the Bay State League behind Norwood (17-1). But the post season play was terrific. Braintree won the Eastern Mass. title and season is not over yet.

Leading the team were captains John Devin and Steve Kirby. John was a Bay State League all-star as well as being named to the Boston Globe All Scholastic squad. John maintained a blistering .425 batting average. Steve led the team in stolen bases with twelve and finished with a lifetime batting average of .375. Other 1984 BSL All-Stars were juniors Rick Snyder, Tom Zanca and Dan Lambert. Dan captured the Bay State League batting title with an average of .485.

Braintree qualified for the Eastern Massachusetts tournament for the twelfth time in fourteen years and presented Coach Don Fredericks with his 200th career win as the team trounced Milton 21-4.

The team continued its standout play demolishing Norwood 7-4, Plymouth Carver and Brockton on the way to the Division I South championship. The next victim was Lowell for the Eastern Mass. title. Last on the list was Holy Name of Worcester in the State finals. Braintree won 2-1.

Third baseman Dan Lambert crossed the plate repeatedly this year. Rich Stearns was steady on the mound. Coach Fredericks notched his 200th win. John Devin scored a run the hard way.

BSL CO-CHAMPS

Linda Rhodes glides over the bar in the high jump. Linda led BHS in this event. Coach Chute surveys his troops. Jessica Hayes was very steady in both the discus and the shot put. Kathy Blake set a school record in the 330 low hurdles. Karen Higgins shows great form in the hurdles too. Sue Shea stretched out for better distance in the long jump. Elaina Cushing and Kerry Carney were Braintree entrants in the 400 meter.

1984 was a banner year for girls track. With a total team effort and a record number of girls participating, Braintree tied for best record in the league and reigned as co-champions with a 8-1 record.

Two BHS athletes set records in their primary events. Kathy Blake distinguished herself in the hurdles setting a new Brain-tree High record with a time of 49.5 in the 330 low hurdles. Tri-captain Kerry Carney overcame all the competition in the league to set a new BSL mark in the 400 meter run at 60.2 seconds.

Track has become an "in" sport for girls at the high school. The power and grace combine to produce athletes of rare form.

Coach Connolly yells encouragement to her team. Janine MacAleese was one of the batting leaders. Chris Hannigan gets ready to stretch her lead at first. Lisa Flanagan filled in ably at the catcher position. Jean Laiosa holds at third. Katie Walsh and Kim Litchfield were two of the outstanding juniors on the squad. Katie led the team in pitching statistics. Lisa Olivere waits for the throw.

The Girls' varsity softball team finished the season with a record of 9-9. The BSL was a very interesting league this season. Walpole captured the championship with a record of 16-2. Five teams finished tied for second place with 11-7 records (Dedham, Natick, Norwood, Milton and Wellesley).

Our girls played well offensively. The team posted a batting average of .349 as seven girls batted over .300 for the season. Beth Fitzgerald led the Wamps with a sizzling .455 average, followed closely by Lisa Olivere at .448 and Rita Nevulis at .415. Jean Laiosa finished at .393 and Janine MacAleese at .351 to round out the top five batters.

The season will be memorable for the horrible weather which caused many practice sessions to be held indoors sheltered from the unseasonable cold weather. Walpole provided the opposition for the most memorable games of the season. In the first meeting Braintree led Walpole 8-6 going into the bottom of the seventh. The count on the batter was two strikes with two outs already logged. Unbelievably Walpole came back to win 9-8. In the season finale, BHS at 8-9 faced down league champ Walpole (16-1). Braintree came through with four runs in the fourth and held on to beat the league champ 6-5. It was a fine way to end the season.

Honored for their achievements this year were Lisa Olivere and Beth Fitzgerald who were named BSL All Stars. Sharing the ALICE E. DAUGHERTY SOFTBALL AWARD for 1984 were Janine MacAleese and Lisa Olivere. Janine also received the WOMEN COACHES AWARD as the outstanding all around senior girl athlete, to cap off a distinguished four year career in BHS athletics.
